Will Cleveland Speak?

President Cleveland's departure from Buzzard's Bay on his way to Washington was an event of importance, and gave rise to many rumors, among them being one to the effect that he had agreed that in the event of united action on the congressional candidates, to make a speech in Senator Hill's favor before returning to Washington. Both Chairman Thatcher and Major Hinckley treated the report lightly, but the former still firmly maintained that the president would be heard from at the proper time.

The big campaign speeches "below Harlem," began tonight, Senator Hill speaking in Brooklyn and Tammany holding a mass meeting at the wigwam.

"The committee of seventy" had a ratification meeting at Cooper union, at w' Carl Schurz. Seth Low, ex-Secretary Fairchild, Dr. Parkhurst and other eminent reformers, spoke in favor of the election of Colonel Strong for mayor and against Tammany and its methods. Vice President Stevenson will be here on Thursday and will make three speeches in Brooklyn, Pough keepsle and this city—and Secretary Carlisle has also agreed to make at least one speech during the closing week of the campaign.

"We have made a big discovery today," said Chairman Thatcher. "There is a defect in the new constitution, upon the adoption of which the voters will be required to pass judgment November 5th, which will create a legislative hiatus if adopted. The discovery was made by Henry T. Utley, a lawyer of Waterville, N. Y. The burden of the discovery is that if the constitution is adopted there will be no legislature in 1896 and the candidates elected this year will not meet in Albany next winter. The new constitution, after making the new apportionment, provides for the election of senstors and assemblymen under it in November, 1895, and then provides that the constitution, if approved, shall go into effect on January 1, 1895." leadquarters were agitated over an alleged Tammany Hall Does a Good Day's RIVAL CANDIDATES TAKEN DOWN And Democracy Is to Present a Solid Senator Faulkner, chairman of the congressional committee, breakfasted with the senator. They are said to have agreed the congressional committee, and to have agreed the congressional committee, and to have agreed the congression of congligation is necessary. that a policy of concillation is necessary.

After the conference, Mr. Faulkner returned to the Imperial hotel to meet Police Commissioner Martin and other Tam-many leaders to see if terms could not be arranged. Among Hill's callers this morning were: F. M. Scott, ex-Mayor Grace's right-hand man, who was the reform league candidate for mayor in 1890 against Grant; E. Ellery Anderson, August and Perry Belmont and George W. Green, one of the county democracy's congressional can-

It was just 8 o'clock when W. L. Strong, the candidate for mayor, appeared. A yell went up as he stepped forward, and the cheers were renewed when John W. Goff appeared, following Mr. Strong. Five minutes later, Joseph Laroque stepped forward and opened the meeting in an appropriate speech.

At the conclusion of Mr. Laroque's speech, ex-Mayor William R. Grace was seen pushing through the mass of the women and men. A roar of appliance went women and men. A roar of applause went up from the audience as he bowed and sat down next to Mr. Strong. The platform of the committee of seventy was then read. It reiterates the principles contained in the address to the people of the city of New York heretofore published. The platform was adopted unanimously. Brooklyn, N. Y., October 23.—The democracy of Kings county descended upon the Academy of Music this evening and not only filled that structure, as it probably has been before, but packed the streets for blocks away. David B. Hill was given an ovation, the like of which he had never experienced. One hour before the meeting was called to order every seat in the historic academy was taken. Over a thousand chairs were placed in the aisles and in the boxes. Hun-dreds of ladies succeeded in getting seats in the boxes and the orchestra.

The police were unable to keep out the mass of people who besieged the entrances after the house was filled. The mob rushed in, packed the aisles and filled every foot of space inside of the building. Several hundred prominent democrats occupied seats on the stage.

Conterno's band kept the crowd in good humor until a quarter past 8 o'clock, when Senator Hill appeared upon the stage. Then there was a wild scene of excitement. Men stood on chairs and waved their hats and cheered. Women waved their handker-chiefs. The cheering continued for three

To accomplish the purpose aimed at, it is proposed to transfer Amos Cummings from the thirteenth to the eighth district, but it is learned that Cummings has protested and his protest was backed up by a delegation of trades assembly people this afteronon. He will be allowed to remain where he was. The democratic managers have been at work today on the Brooklyn congressional situation and express themselves as elated over the prospect of unity.

A report was circulated today that Sickles county democracy, finally got a chance to be heard. He called the meeting to order. Edward M. Grout was nominated as permanent chairman by Mr. Bell. Mr. Grout was formerly Judge Gaynor's law partner, and recently bolted from the Shepardites. Mr. Grout made a short speech, in which he said that he was an independent democrat, but his independence is not larger than his democracy. A letter was read from Judge Brown, can-didate for judge of the court of appeals, in reply to an invitation to attend the meeting, stating that although he was anxious for the success of the state ticket, he would adhere to the resolution he formed

There was another prolonged outburst of applause. When it had ceased, he said:
"Ladies and Gentlemen—It seems to me to be the same old Brooklyn. I am advised that you have recently had a reorganization of the democracy of this county. If you should have another one, you will have to have another building. (Applause). I you should have another one, you will have to have another building. (Applause). I need not teil you that I feel at home here in Brooklyn. I had hoped that I might address you simply as a democrat, not as a candidate, but the convention has decreed otherwise and I am here to speak for its nominations. There seemed to be an impression a few months ago that the election in this state was to be allowed to go by default. I congratulate you that now a different impression prevails. Not only in this state, but throughout the union, indifference has given way to enthusiasm, and now the feeling all over is that we must have a democratic victory this fail."

The senator then discussed the issues of the campaign, using the same arguments that he has employed in his speeches through the state, Commissioner Lane to the Cotton Growers of the South.

CALLS FOR A MEETING NEXT MONTH

To Discuss the Causes That Led to Depression of Cotton.

FICTITIOUS REPORTS DENOUNCED

The Commissioner Says the Fine Weather Has Enabled the Grower to Market His Cotton, and Herce Large Receipts.

Huntsville, Ala., October 23 .- (Special.)-Hector D. Lane, commissioner of agriculture of Alabama, issued a call today for a neeting of southern cotton growers, to convene at Montgomery, Ala., November 13th. to discuss the causes leading to the present depressed condition of the cotton market. The call begins as follows: "To the Cotton Growers: It is a matter of the utmost importance to the farmers of the south that the reports now being sent out by cotton manipulators should be refuted. That the present low prices are based upon fictitious reports no intelligent man doubts; that the 'private estimate sent out from New Orleans to the effect that the present cotton crop would exceed 10,000,000 bales has had a depressing tenden cy is generally admitted, although not supported by any previous statistics or predi cate to go upon, but an unprecedented de livery up to date, which argument can be answered with the undeniable fact that we have the most propitious season ever known for gathering the staple throughout the entire cotton belt. I vouchsafe the prediction that if the same weather continue two weeks longer that every bale of cottor grown in Alabama can be gathered.

"My calculations are based upon persona observations, having traveled through north Alabama by private conveyance for the last ten days, and its value is en hanced by the well-known fact that cotton raised in that section is about the last to

He then urges the farmers to hold as much of their cotton as possible without detriment to their creditors, and holds that it will be advantageous to all concerned ultimately. He concedes that the resolutions without action are valueless, but cites the farmers' congress held at Memphis, January, 1892, which decreased the acreage that year, and consequently gave the farmers good prices for their cotton. His principal fight will be upon false estimates sent out by the cotton exchanges and cities and the 10,000,000-bale estimate recently sent from New Orleans, marked "private." The cotton interests of the south, he hold, can only be protected by concerted action. The call closed with the following pointed

"Now, in view of the meeting named and the imperative demand upon the southern farmer to undertake protective measures along these lines, I invoke the assistance of the press of the south in calling a meeting of the cotton raisers at Montgomery, Ala., Tuesday, November 13, 1894. By that time I will have gathered the official statistics through the agricultural bureaus that they may be presented publicly, not privately, rested. I hope all farmers who are able to do so without doing an injustice to creditors, will hold their cotton until after the meeting, where we can deliberate over the situation and devise some means to give 'a fight to the finish,' inviting the hearty co-operation of the press and asking that the farmers will give this impirtant matter a consideration and send intelligent representatives at the umbia, S. C., October 23.-(Special.)-In reply to a letter received from County Chairman J. M. Seignious, of Charleston, saying that he had received the state democratic ticket and the constitutional democratic ticket and the constitutional convention tickets "yes," but no constitutional convention tickets "no.", State Chairman Irby wrote today, saying that he assumed entire responsibility for the whole matter, and that he had ordered the printer not to print any "constitutional convention no" tickets. He said that, as the state democratic convention had endorsed a constitutional convention unanimously, and had embodied in their manimously, and had embodied in their platform a demand for it, he did not feel authorized to spend the money of the democratic committee save in furthering the wishes of the state democratic convention. That the republicans and inde-pendents of the state who opposed the constitutional convention were at perfect lib-erty to have "no" tickets printed, and, as The News and Courier, The State and The Caenville News were all opposed to the constitutional convention, they had ample facilities for having them printed.

JAPANESE FEEL JUSTIFIED Waging the War Against China

The Diet's Memorial. London, October 23 .- A Central News dispatch from Tokio says the memorial pre-sented to the government by the extra session of the Japanese diet, just closed at Hiroshima, declares that the war being waged against China is eminently justified, and that the members of the diet, as representatives of the national organization expect the ministers to faithfully support the emperor in his labor to secure complete success in the war; to chastise China until she shall repent of her errors and finally abandon her vicious procedure. It also declares that no foreign interference will be suffered to obstruct the great object of the national policy, viz: To secure a grant of permit of permanent peace in the orient.

The Japanese Repulsed. London, October 23 .- A alspatch to The Times from Tien-Tsin, says that the Chinese officials report that a battle occurred near Yi-Chow yesterday, and that the Japanes were repulsed southward, with a loss three thousand men on each side.

HIS APPETITE WAS RETTER. But the Czar Had Convulsive Symp toms Yesterday.

St. Petersburg, October 23.—Little further respecting the czar has transpired up to 7 o'clock p. m., the time of sending this dis-patch. The police now distribute the official bulletins publicly.

According to advices received by physicians here from their conferees at Livadia, the illness of the czar is taking its usual course towards a fatal issue. His majesty was better Sunday and Monday, and worse today, while it is expected that tomorrow his strength will carry him to another slight rally. Thus the progress of the disease will ebb and flow until the patient succumbs. A bulletin dated Livadia, and timed 7 o'clock p. m., was made public here this evening. It said:

"During the day the czar was languid. There were slight convulsive symptoms. His appetite is better than yesterday." The bulletin is signed by Drs. Leyden, Zacharin, Popon, Balmjamon and Harzeh,

As to the Wedding.

Berlin, October 23.—The Cologne Gazette prints a dispatch from St. Petersburg, saying that, immediately upon the arrival of Princess Alix at Livadia, the final ceremonies of her reception into the orthodox church will take place, and her marriage to the czarowitz will then at once be quietly celebrated.

Lots of Ceremony.

London, October 23.—According to the best information obtainable there will be a best information obtainable there will be a formal betrothal and exchange of rings between the czarowitz and Princess Alix at Livadia on Wednesday, perhaps sooner, according to circumstances. This presupposes the performance of the ceremony of reconciliation to the orthodox church, which, in the usual course, must take place. The the usual course, must take place. The marriage of a foreign unorthodox princess to a Russian heir apparent necessitates three distinct ceremonies—reconciliation to the orthodox church, bethothal and nup-tials. The ceremonies formerly were al-ways separate, but the betrothal and actual marriage latterly have often been performed together. An imperial manifesto on this subject is expected from Livadia.

And Leads the Officers to the Spot Where the Boodle Was Hid.

THERE WERE ONLY TWO ROBBERS

Who Terrorized the Crew and Passengers Near Quantico.

SEARCY TELLS THE WHOLE STORY The Ride Through the Country, and Finding of the Bag Just Where Searcy Said They Hid It.

Calverton, Va., October 23.-Before being brought to Fredericksburg, Charles J. Searcy, the Acquia Creek train robber, made a confession which was taken down, put into typewriting and is now in the hands of the proper authorities. There were but two men concerned in the robbery, Morganfield and Searcy. They had known each other before and had talked of a scheme of that sort, but Searcy for some time refused to go into it. They finally met in Washington and there agreed to rob a train, but fixed on no particular one. From Washington they came down to Fredericksburg, hanging about there for two or three days, staying in the woods most of the time, but coming into Fredericksburg several times. On the afternoon of the day of the robbery they walked over to Brooks station from Fredericksburg and there waited for the northbound train. They got on the train at Brooks in the darkness, behind the tender, having been hidden near the pickle factory under a box car.

When the train stopped-they had no particular reason for selecting Acquia Creek as the spot for the robbery-Morganfield blew open the car door with dynamite, using a half stick with fuse and cap in the end. Morganfield also entered the car. while Searcy stood outside and terrorized the train crew and passengers. After the robbery they got off the engine and struck northwest over the country, going to Calverton station, in Faquier county, and then to Midland and Balston and on by the Faquier White Sulpher Springs, following the telephone line to Front Royal. Near Calverton they hid in the woods some of the goods they had got from the express After being brought here Searcy agreed to go and show where these things, consisting mostly of bonds and bank drafts, were hidden.

Locating the Spot.

On Monday he was taken in a team from Fredericksburg, with Robert Pinkerton, of New York, Sergeant C. W. Edington, of Fredericksburg, and Mr. W. Seymour White, commonwealth's attorney for Stafford county, over the route traveled by him in trying to escape, to endeavor to locate the spot where the bonds should be hidden. Monday night the party spent with ex-Sheriff Hugh Adie, of Stafford. After breakfast with Mr. Adie, the party set out to find the place where Morganfield and Searcy had hidden the money and the express pouch, containing the bonds and drafts. Up through the Stafford roads they went, by Stafford's store, on to Bristowsburg and to Calverton Searcy trying to remember the road he and his pal traveled and the place he left the road. From Calverton the party drove to Catletts and there back on the road to Ochoa, the Mexican revolutionist, who Stafford's store. About three miles from Catletts, Searcy identified the place where they left the road and took to the woods. Driving into a field the horses were tied behind a hay stack and the search for the bag began. The Beg Found.

The shades of evening were falling and Searcy handcuffed to Pinkerton, with Edington, ex-Sheriff Adle and Commonwealth Attorney White, spread out through the pines. Searcy had described the spot exactly, but an hour's search failed to find it. It was getting quite dark when Mr. Adie called out that he had found the spot, and all parties hastened up to where, under the roots of a blown-down tree, just as Searcy had described, the bag was taken out. Its contents were not examined. The party drove at once back to Calverton. where the bag was sealed and shipped to the Adams Express Company, at Washington. The party will spend the night here and drive back to Fredericksburg in the morn-

Morganfield Identified.

Cincinnati, October 23.-This afternoon Depot Watchman Wright positively identified C. A. Morganfield as the man whom he saw with Searcy in Cumberland, Md. Messenger Murray wanted first to hear the man's voice, as he said he would never forget that voice. While Murray remained out in the hall others got Morganfield to

Murray insisted there was no doubt about it being the voice that held him up. He afterwards fully identified the prisoner. The sheriff of Stafford county, Virginia, will be here tomorrow. Morganfield's broken leg will compel the authorities to carry him to Virginia on a stretcher. The prisoner is very unwilling to go.

The coat recovered from Shields, the one-legged man arrested at Middletown, was identified by Murray as the one worn by Morganfield at the time of the robbery. Shields had sold the vest and overalls, but they have been secured for the trial in Virginia. The visitors think Searcy has told Pinkerton everything and that he will soon have the plans of the gang. Agent Alexander, of Charlottesville, Va., and general officers of the Adams Express. Company officers of the Adams Express Company accompanied Wright and Murray.

SUICIDE OF DR. TURNEY

Who Choked His Wife to Death Four Years Ago.

Birmingham, Ala., October 22.-(Special)-Today, at Falkville, in a little cottage without windows, the dead body of Dr. William Turney was found, who had been missing for several days. The tale of suicide was plainly told by an empty morphine bottle being found by his side.

Dr. Turney was eighty-two years of age and had been married three times. His third wife was a beautiful young woman who attracted much attention, and he became insanely jealous, and about four years ago he saw her speak to a man upon the street. When she returned home that night, in a When she returned home that night, in a fit of rage, he seized her and choked her to death. He was arrested but pronounced insane and sent to the state insane asylum and kept there until a few months ago.

When he returned home he found that he was about to be prosecuted for wife murder and it is supposed that this was the cause of his suicide. He was at one time very prominent in church affairs.

An Ex-Convict and His Pal Thought to Be the Murderers of Mr. Copes. Columbia, S. They Burn Railroad Property in South Chicago, October 23.—Deeds of violence which characterized the recent great railroad strike were repeated last night at Grand Crossing and South Chicago by a gang of hoodlums. An Illinois Central sub-

When the train reached Wildwood the depot was the train reached Wildwood the depot was burning and while the trainmen devoted themselves to extinguishing the flames the miscreants set fire to a train of box cars on a side track. When the train again started it was found that all the semaphores had been removed and the lamps placed under the wooden work of the roadbed, the structure burning like tinder. The flames were smothered with sand and cinders, but not until the track in places were so but not until the track in places were so weakened that supports had to be placed under it. OCHOA KIDNAPED.

Masked Men Take Him from the Jail, A Pursuit Started.

San Antonio, Tex., October 23.-Victor L. conoa, the mexican revolutionist, who led the campaign against the Mexican government in the state of Chihuahua a year ago, committing many crimes, has been kidnaped. He was captured about a week ago at Fort Stockton, west of here, and placed in jail to await trial in the United States court for violation of the neutrality laws. This morning about 3 o'clock a band of about fifteen masked men visited the jail, forced an entrance and took Ochoa out and carried him away with them towards Mexico. A party, among who were Sheriff Rial, a deputy United States marshal and two rangers, started in pursuit as soon as it was light enough to follow the trail, and expect to overtake Ochoa before night.

Two theories are current here, one that he was released by friends and the other that he was kidnaped by sympathizers of the Mexican government on account of the impossibility of extraditing him.

JEALOUSY THE CAUSE. One Woman Shoots Another One at

Meridian. Meridian, Miss., October 23.—Minnie Ross, a young woman who came here yesterday from Mobile, Ala., was dangerously shot tonight by another woman, Nettie Morris. They were both engaged in the depot shooting gallery. The cause of the trouble is jealousy. The wounded woman was shot at four times with a 32-caliber pistol, three shots taking effect—one in the neck, passing out through the cheek. The other wounds were in the thigh and abdomen.

More Stamps Stolen.

Washington, October 23.—The postoffice department was today notified from Wilmington, N. C., of the theft of many thousands of stamps, but, as yet, nothing is known as to where they were taken from. The dispatch from Wilmington said that the thieves tried to ship them by express to New York, but a postoffice detective seized the stamps as government property. The names of the parties implicated have been ascertained, and warrants issued for their arrest. It is expected that the robbers will be apprehended within twenty-four hours.

The Check for $1,800 Paid to Attorney Hurley Ballew.

HIS FATHER A. W. BALLEW ON TRIAL

The Testimony Was Concluded Yesterday Afternoon, and the Argument to the Jury Begins This Morning.

The testimony in the trial of A. W. Ballew, charged with defrauding Lucy Burrell, an old negro woman living at Rome, Ga., of half the pension money collected for her from the United States government, was concluded before Judge Newman, in the federal court, yesterday morning.

her daughter, who testified as to their un-derstanding with the pension agent and the actual sum of money received from im, several other important witnesses were

It was shown by the government that the total amount of the pension, as covered by the check mailed to Lucy Burrell, was $3,-774.34. That after it was placed in the Mer-chants' National bank, of Rome, to the credit of Lucy Burrell, a check for $74, payable to A. W. Ballew, and a check for $1,-87, payable to Hurley Ballew, were drawn

Evidence was introduced by the government to show that the latter check was ob-tained by fraud and on a willful misrepre-This much having been shown by the prosecution, the government rested. Colonel Glenn's Motion.

At this point the jury was given a recess of five minutes and Colonel W. C. Glenn, the leading attorney for the defense, offered to the court an important motion in behalf

He made the point that the collection of the pension money and its subsequent de-posit in the Merchants' National bank completed the relationship existing between the pensioner and the government, and that the subsequent dealings of the attorney with his client formed a separate transac-tion. The government, therefore, had no right to interfere in the prosecution of the case, which was properly within the juris-diction of the state courts.

Judge Newman held, however, that both of these belonged to the same transaction and that under the proper construction of the statute he would have to allow the case

Still another motion was made by the attorney to the effect that the defendant was not guilty of the technical charge speci fied in the second count of the bill. The court decided to allow the case to proceed before passing upon this motion finally. At the close of this legal discussion the jury was ushered back into the courtroom. To Prove His Reputation.

The introduction of testimony for the defense then began,

Captain John H. Reese was the first witness introduced to sustain the character of the defendant for honesty.

He testified that he was a practicing attorney in Rome and was a member of the legislature. He had known Ballew for several years and his reputation in the community was that of an honest man. He had personal dealings with him and was in a position to form an estimate of his in-

On the cross-examination he stated that he had never heard of the defendant's being connected with any swindling cases until the present difficulty.

Sheriff Jake Moore was the next witness.

He had been the sheriff of Floyd county for sixteen years and had known Ballew for eight or ten. His character was good and he never knew him to be connected with any pension steals. The cross-examination brought out no material evidence for the prosecution

Captain Dave Wylie testified that he had known the defendant for twenty years. He was at present a joint owner with him of property in Gordon county. He believed him to be an honest man and would not hesitate to trust his word. J. D. Chamblee, a saloon keeper of Rome,

Ga., was next introduced. Chambles was one of the witnesses to Lucy Burrell's signature or mark on the back of the original pension check, and also filled out the of the check, payable to Hurley Ballew, $1,887. He testified that his saloon was on the opposite side of the street from Ballew's office. He had another saloon in a different part of the city. A brother of Hurley Ballew was in his employ and still another brother was in the postoffice. In the conversation that he witnessed in regard to the $1,800 check there was nothing stated in regard to its being a check for $25. He thought from what he gathered that it was for the purchase of a house and

On the cross-examination the witness was asked by Colonel Rucker if he was not anxfous to keep the government off the Bal-lews. He answered no. He was then asked if he did not write a letter to Congress man Maddox asking him to use his influence to have the matter dropped by the government. He was not able to recollect. ment's counsel and recognized by the wit-

the defense examined by Colonel Gloth.

He testified that he was now in the employ of the Southern Express Company, but at the time of the transaction named in the bill he was living in Rome and operated a drug store. He dealt in paints and oils and also carried a small stock of groceries. He first made the acquaintance of Lucy Burrell in his father's office. His father had said to her that if he took the case and undertook to get her pension she would have to employ some one to get up the testimony. Hurley Ballew, the witness, agreed to do this fur her. There was no agreement as to compensation. He went to work and when the pension money was drawn she gave him a check for half the amount that was coming to her, viz., 109 amount that was coming to her, viz., for $1,887. This check was written out by his II.887. This check was written out by his friend Chamblee. Examined as to how he and his father happened to come into possession of the original check from the pension department, he testified that Charley Burrell had turned over the key to the postoffice box to him several days in advance. The only mait that came was the letter enclosing the pension check. He sent Charley with his own mule to notify his mother and the next morning they all went to the bank, where the check was cashed and the money redeposited.

On the cross-examination Colonel Rucker inquired, with a sharp accentuation, as to how much work the witness had performed by which he was entitled to such a hand-some gift as $1,800. He stated that he had made several trips into the country and found quite a number of difficulties in the way. The examination was rather critical along this line and the witness was finally asked if three trips into the country was worth as much as $1,800. To this he made no direct reply. He was also cross-examin-ed in regard to the manner in which he came into possession of the key by which the letter, containing the pension check, was taken from the postoffice. As soon as the testimony of the witness was thorough-ly sifted by the crossfiring of questions, was allowed to come down from the witness stand. The Defendant's Story.

The defendant, A. W. Ballew, was next put on the witness stand. He testified that he had been in the pension business since 1865, directly after the war. He had lived in Rome with his family for several years. He made the acquaintance of Lucy Burrell in 1890. He was under the impression that she came to his office. He agreed to take her claim at the usual fee and it was so understood. He found difficulties in the way, however, which were unforeseen in the claim of another party alleging that was the widow of the deceased soldier. This, however, was eventually dismissed. He explained the manner in which the pension check had been seceived and cashed at the Merchants' National bank and the proceeds placeed to the credit of Lucy Burrell. The check for $74 that was subsequently drawn in his favor was to cover sums of money advanced to the pensioner and her children. The $1,300 paid to his son Hurley never reached him. It was given to him by Lucy Burrell and was a separate transaction. There was no understanding with her as to an illegal fee and no illegal fee was demanded or received. The crossexamination was rather caustic and it was after 2 o'clock when the evidence was con-

A Distinguished Converted Hebrew or His Way to This City.

Herrman Warszawiak-pronounced Varsaviak-a converted Jew, is on his way south and expects, in the near future, to visit this city. He is one of the most remarkable men of his race, and the influence he is exercising over the Jews in New York city is one of the marvels of the present generation.

He has a large church in New York city and from three to eight hundred Hebrews gather to hear his preaching every Sat-urday afternoon. He prefers to preach on Saturday and retains many of his Hebnew customs in order to keep in touch with his people and to make them instrumental in their conversion.

Already, it is claimed, a large number of them have been converted and no preacher in New York city has excited more interest than the eloquent young Hebrew, who has adopted the Christian

These meetings were started in 1890 with a small attendance of only sixteen. They have steadily increased until a church with school and classrooms, has been added for the purpose of accommodating the crow that have flocked to the standard which the Hebrew divine has raised in the heart of the great metropolis.

He is a native of Warsaw and is scarcely thirty years old. He was taught in the language and literature of the Jews, and was brought up under the strict rules of an orthodox household. He began to read the new testment, however, and under the preaching of Rev. Daniel Edwards, a

He came to this country about four years ago, in deflance of his family, his father being a man of considerable wealth. Every being a man of considerable wealth. Every inducement, it is claimed, has been used to persuade him to give up preaching, if not to relincuish his religion. His wife has since joined him in the embrace of Christianity, but his children are still in Europe in the custody of his parents, who refuse to give them up. It is predicted that his preaching is destined to influence, to a marked degree, the Hebrew worship of this country.

He has groused interest in every section.

He has aroused interest in every section of the country in which he has preached, and his coming to Atlanta will be an event of no trifling significance in the religious life of this city.

SOME CURIOSITIES

of a Heated Political Campaign in New York.

SHATTERED IDOLS OF THE CAMPAIGN

Strauss Talked Too Much and Wrote Too Much.

AND THE RESULT WAS A FALL

Some Strange Facts About the Nomina tions for Congress-An Ex-Convict Jumps Into Notoriety Again.

New York, October 22 .- (Special.)-Two of the idols of the political reformers have already been shattered in the present cam-paign in this state and the election is yet three weeks away. First W. J. Gaynor, the Brooklyn lawyer, who was landed on the supreme court bench by the wave of reform that swept over the City of Churches last year, started writing letters and the result was disastrous to his am-bition to be known as a great man. Gaynor-would have been nominated for governor if he had not begun to write letters as soon as his name was mentioned.

s his name was mentioned. His last publication left him a broken public idol, a man of clay, and led some of the democratic leaders of the state to say: "The nomination of Gaynor for judge of the court of appeals was an accident, his election would have been a calamity." But there was something of dignity in the Gaynor episode compared with the opera bouffe entrance and exit of Nathan Straus into and out of rolling. Straus into and out of politics. Openly the politicians are expressing their disgust at the action of Straus, privately they have enjoyed many a good laugh at the many comical incidents of his brief career as a candidate for mayor.

Straus is one of those men who succeed in building up a great reputation on a very uncertain foundation. Because he is a member of the firm owning the largest retail store in the city he was known as a successful business man. Because he sold coal and milk in the poor quarters of the city at lower prices than other tradesmen he built up a reputation as a philanthro-

On the two reputations he entered politics. He was picked out by Tammany hall as a strong candidate for mayor. It was argued that his business reputation and his reputation as a philanthropist would be worth thousands of votes.

The Great Disappointment. But no man ever proved a greater disap-cointment when placed in the full glare of publicity. Real facts about the man came out with startling rapidity. It developed that J. Pierpont Morgan, the rich banker, had furnished most of the money to carry on the coal and milk business on which rested the fame of Straus as a philanthro-

Worse than that, he talked too much. For two days after he was nominated he was pie for the reporters. He talked of everything until his friends, after much effort, induced him to shut up. Then he started in to manage his own campaign. The first document prepared was one attacking the members of the committee of seventy that arranged the opposition local ticket. One of the members of that com-mittee is J. Pierpont Morgan, the man whose money helped to build up the reputation of Straus as a philanthropist. Morgan was specially mentioned and attacked in the Straus campaign document.

Then came fils attempt to dictate to Senator Hill about the printing of the democratic state ticket on local ballots. Old and experienced politicians gasped at the audacity of the man, and few of them were surprised when Hill declined to even notice the demand of Straus or to write a reply to his letter.

There was nothing left for Mr. Straus to do but to get out. It was a case of a man going up like a rocket and coming down like a stick. His friends were sorely disappointed, but the leaders of Tammany hall are rejoicing that the revelation in time. They are now sincerely glad that he is out of the race. The strength he was expected to develop was wanting and his campaign would undoubtedly have been a political funeral procession if he had remained in the race.

He goes back to private life, a shattered idol, after one of the shortest careers in politics on record.

The nomination of ex-Mayor Hugh J. Grant has aroused the greatest enthusiasm in Tammany hall, and the leaders feel that the organization is saved. Grant is very popular and the braves of the wigwam will rally around him to a man. He is unquestionably the strongest man the organization could have named for mayor.

There are no scandals in his public or private life. His enemies can only attack him as a candidate of Tammany hall. He has a splendid record in office and has the confidence of the conservative business

Mr. Grant is not a man of great ability, but he is honest. His political opponents admit that, and there appears to be no doubt of his election.

For the first time in many years the republican politicians in this city and state have all the money they want for campaign purposes. Not one word of com-plaint of lack of funds has been heard since the campaign opened. Small fry politicians and republican camp followers may be seen any evening spreading themselves all over plush sofas at republican headquarters and rubbing their hands in glee.

Mr. Morton has a barrel of great capacity, and Mr. Strong, the candidate for mayor, is rich, and his only political reputation is that of a liberal giver. Morton's barrel has evidently been opened wide and his campaign managers have money to burn. The abundance of money has brought out colored republicans in large numbers. As a rule the negro in politics is ignored here, but this year he refuses to stay in the background while the barrel is open.

Politics Makes Strange Changes. That time-worn proverb that politics makes strange bedfellows, was never better illustrated than in some of the city nominations made this year. In one of the city districts the Tammany candidate for assemblyman is Lyman M. Reddington, an eloquent and distinguished lawyer, who was the democratic candidate for governor of Vermont in 1882. In another district they have nominated Edwin T. Taliaferro, who was speaker of the house of repre-sentatives for five sessions, and was for several years the leading criminal lawyer and democratic orator of Alabama. In still another district the candidate is Philip Wissig, who was kicked out of Tammany hall two years ago, because of an inde-cent speech he made while serving in the

"Ignore the 50,000 democrats in New York city represented by this delegation and the partisan amendments proposed by the republican constitutional convention will be written as an epitaph on the tombstone of the democracy."

A week later Mr. Coudert came out for

WHY HE SLEW HIM.

Van Pritchett on Trial for the Killing of His Father.

Nashville, Tenn., October 23.—(Special.)— The hearing of evidence in the Pritchett case was concluded this afternoon and the argument, to last three hours on a side, will begin tomorrow morning. A horrible story was developed of the dissipation, brutality and depravity on H. Clark Pritchett's part, and it was proven that Van Pritchett had killed his father in defense of his mother.

The first witness was Temple O. Harris, Jr., who spent the day drinking with Clark Pritchett and was at his home when he was killed. He testified as to Clark Pritchett's roughness and profanity around home The day of the shooting he had been drink ing and was nearly oblivious to what was going on. He had started home, but Mrs. Pritchett asked him to remain for her protection, as his presence was a restraint on Pritchett. Pritchett tried to get his little children to drink. Mrs. Pritchett was kindly, courteous and submissive.

Clay McDaniel said that Pritchett was cordial and friendly away from hime, but at home was profane and inconsiderate of his wife. When told his wife was thinking of applying for a divorce, he said "d-n her, I will kill her," and got his pistol, McDaniel and his wife went to Pritchett's and stayed several days for Mrs. Pritchett's protection.

Van Kirkman Pritchett, the defendant, told how on his way home he met a servant who told him his mother said he must hurry, as his father and Mr. Harris were very drunk. His father had made his mother play on the plano several hours and she finally arose and said "Oh, I am so tired, I can't play." His father then said: "D-n you, sit down," and arose and started toward his mother with his hand in his hip

On seeing his father's condition he had armed himself and when he started toward her he stepped between them and fired two shots. His mother had often told him of his father's threats and blows. His father had threatened to kill him twice and had once drawn a knife on him. He had seen his father strike his mother for less cause than refusing to play. Rettie Hill a ett was rough, profane and indecent in his language to Mrs. Pritchett before the servants and children. Had seen him strike her and tear her dress off; had not seen him sober in four years.

Mrs. Pritchett then detailed the story of the killing and related many incidents of his violence and cruelty. He had cursed their children when they refused to drink; she had stopped proceedings for divorce because she feared a tragedy; she had started to secure a divorce because of Pritchett's notorious connection with disreputable women. Sergeant Dick Reed testified that Pritchett frequented Little Redmond's place at all hours of the day and night.

This closed the case and argument begins

FORGOT HIS ORDERS

And Caused a Terrible Wreck on the Southern Pacific Railroad.

TWO PERSONS WERE KILLED OUTRIGHT

And Several Others Badiy Injured-1 Read End Collision in Which Cars Were Telescoped.

Houston, Tex., October 23 .- A terrible ead-end collision occurred at 12:40 o'clock this morning on the Southern Pacific, near Walker station, twenty-three miles west of here. The westbound passenger left Houston thirty minutes late, and was run ning very fast to make up time. The telegraph operator at Walker had received a dispatch ordering the passenger to meet the eastbound stock train there. the passenger train pulled into Walker, he failed to display the regular signal, and, after changing the mail, went back to his office, where he suddenly remembered his orders. In the meantime, the passenger train, in charge of Conductor Reed, had pulled out at a high rate of speed. Atkinson, realizing his awful blunder, telegraphed to way-stations, but all offices were closed except Rosenberg. At that point, the extra stock train had received orders to take the siding at Walker for the passenger. Knowing the passenger was late, Conductor Hesse and Brakeman Sandsbury mounted the engine, expecting to reach Walker, take the siding in time and, let the passenger fly past. The extra stock train was making forty-five miles an hour when the engineer saw a light a few yards ahead through the dense fog. He commanded his fireman to jump, re versed his engine and jumped himself.

Then came the frightful crash. The two engines being badly mashed up. Conductor Marion Hesse and Brakeman Bruce Sandsbury, of the freight, who were riding on the engine, jumped, but were caught under the engine and crushed to death. Connor, engineer, and C. A. Honsacker, fireman, on the freight, both jumped? and each one had his right leg broken, besides receiving other injuries. Fireman Dan Gibson, of the passenger train, was badly hurt on the leg.

J. B. Irvin, express agent, was injured on the head, and Mike Garvey, brakeman, badly bruised. The most miraculous escape was that of E. P. Randolph, mail agent.

The mail car was telescoped and denolished. Randolph was thrown through his car into the express car, and only slightly injured. The escape of Express Agent Irvin was almost as miraculous, as his car was also wrecked. Five cars of cattle and horses were mashed to pieces, all the live stock being killed. Some of the freight cars took fire and were burned up. No damage was done to the passen gers. The track was not cleared until tonight.

Crushed His Head.

Abbott, a farmer of that community, got his head caught between a post and the end of an fron rod which held his wagon body to-gether. The post crushed his skull of one side and the iron rod penetrated it to depth of half an inch on the other side. It is believed that he will die.

Collision on the Southern Pacific. San Antonio, Tex., October 23 .- A headend collision occurred on the Southern Pacific near Walker station, just west of here last night, between a passenger and a freight train, resulting in the killing of Conductor Hess and Brakeman Soonbug. Four other persons were injured. Both enthe baggage and mail freight cars were wrecked. The accident is alleged to be due to the negligence of the telegraph operator at Stafford.

Misunderstood the Warning. St. Louis, Mo., October 23 .- A crowded excursion train going to Granite, Ill., yesterday, ran past a long row of cattle chutes. The brakeman called out "danger" at the car door. Nearly every pas-senger misunderstood the signal, and all who could stuck their heads out of the windows. John Miller had an arm broken and Carl Wendte had his skull fractured and died an hour later. Six others were bruised.

But It Wasn't Fireproof. Cincinnati, O., October 23.—The residence & Casimir Werk, in Westwood, seven miles from this city, was burned that morning. Mr. Werk, deeming the house fireproof, shut the room up and waited for the fire to burn out, refusing to admit the firemen. Instead, the whole house was soon destroyed and nothing saved. Loss, $50,000; insurance, $3,500. SOCIALIST CONGRESS.

Herr Fischer Moves a Resolution to Reject a Proposal. Frankfurt-on-the-Main, October 23 .-- Herr Schwarz, of Leubeck, presided at today's session of the socialist congress. Early in the day's proceedings a motion was made by Herr Fischer that the congress reject the proposal that the party's representatives in parliament should move a number of olutions in the reichstag for the amelloration of the social condition of the working classes. Fischer declared that the reichstag would never adopt the proposed motion. At the present day the state is unable to solve the social question. The socialist deputies, the speaker asserted, ought to occupy their time chiffy in agitation. All the speakers who followed Fischer opposed the stand taken by him. DEFENDED THE SOUTH.

An Ohio Minister Tells What Has Been

Done for the Negro. Richmond, Va., October 23 .- At the session today of the general Christian mission ary convention of the national convention of Disciples, Rev. C. C. Smith, of Massillon, O., made an earnest plea for the evangelization of the negro.

Referring to the treatment of the negro in the south he said: "The south needs no defense. But it is only a matter of justice, since so much has been said and written to call attention to and magnify her sins. that mention at least, should be made of her virtues. Suppose some prophet had ris en out of the flame and smoke of Appomattox and exclaimed: 'These men, who have today been forced by the arbitriment of war to free their slaves, will, in the next thirty years, spend $60,000,000 for their education,' would not have been a prophet without honor, especially in hig own coun try? And yet, not only is this true, but in the school year of 1893-'94 $10,000,000 has been expended by the southern states, exclusive of benefactions, on the common schools being $6 per capita of all who attended school. In addition the various southern states entirely in the control of white people, voted $138,750 for the higher education of the negro."

A collection was called and $2,000 raised for the work.

The committee on officers for the next year reported the officers who were elected Dallas, Tex., was selected as the meeting place of the next convention. At the close of the report Dr. Tyler, of New York, presented Dr. E. W. Hacher, of Richmond, who with Drs. Eager, of Alabama; Kerfoot, of Kentucky; Carroll, of Texas, and J. B. Hawthorne, of Georgia, were appointed a committee at the late southern Baptist convention at Dallas, Tex., to take into consideration the question of Christian union, and this committee was requested to suggest to the next annual convention of the Disciples, a committee of conference, who are to meet a similar committee from the southern Baptist church.

TO TEST SOUTHERN COAL. The Montgomery to Cruise in the Gulf and Use Southern Coal.

Washington, October 23 .- Orders have been issued to the Montgomery, directing that the vessel reach Mobile, Ala., on the 20th of November. She will afterwards cruise in the waters of the gulf for the purpose of testing coal mined in the south-ern states. The department intends to make Key West a coaling station—sufficiently large to accommodate the ships cruising in its vicinity. Coaling in the Caribbean sea is expensive, and it is Secretary Herbert's intention hereafterate have our ships take coal as far as possible at Key West. He has notified the southern coal companies that a test of all coal that may be delivered free at Mobile, Pensacola or Key West, in quantities not less than one hundred tons, will be made by the Montgomery.

The Montgomery will be occupied some months with this duty. She is now at Norfolk navy yard, having a cylinder put in place. This work will be completed by the 15th of next month and she will leave for Mobile, where she will be presented with a silver service. When the presentation a silver service. When the presentation has taken place, she will begin the tests of ccal. According to Commodore Chadwick, chief of the bureau of naval equipment, the coal balls of the navy are steadily increasing owing to the greater consumption of coal by modern vessels. The annual report of the bureau shows that there will be a deficiency of $30,000 in the appropriation for equipment, owing to the fact that $191,291 more was expended for coal in the past year than in the year previous.

There were purchased at home 42,190 tons of coal, costing $178,163, of which 9,950 tons were purchased on the Pacific coast, at an average cost of $7.02 per ton, and 32,685 tons on the Atlantic coast, at a cost of $3.33 per ton. There was spent abroad for coal $462,-192, at an average cost of $8.56.

A vote of confidence in the government was then passed—365 to 155. The newspapers of Paris today discuss at considerable length the resumption of the sittings of the chamber of deputies and the senate. The generally expressed opinion is that, despite the uncertainty of the situation, the ministry is in no danger. The government, it is believed, can easily dispose of all the interpellations presented.

but that difficulty will be experienced when the budget is debated. The opponents of the government rely upon a surprise that will be brought out during the progress of the debate to cause the overthrow of the ministry.

"RIVERSIDE ROUTE" CHANGES HANDS

Meeting of the Rate Committee of the Southern Railway and Steamship Association-Other Railway News.

The Rome railroad, of Georgia, known to the railroad world as the "Riverside route," changed hands yesterday. It is now the property of the Nashville Chattanooga and St. Louis, and after the 1st of November will be operated by this system under full control. The Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis has bought rearly every dollar of the stock of the road and comes into absolute control of the property, there being only seven shares out of the 2,500 that do not belong to the purchaser.

About $800 will cover all of the stock not owned by the Nashville, Chattanooga St. Louis. Colonel J. W. Thomas, president and general manager of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, was in the city last night from Nashville, and when seen by The Con-stitution confirmed the report that the Rome read had changed hands.

read had changed hands.

"Yes, the deal was finally made last Friday," said he, "but we have waited until today to get matters all ready for the change to be known to the public. Mr. W.
Brooks, president and general manager of the Rome railroad, was in Atlanta today and I met him here. The matter is all straightened out now, and the road has be-come the property of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, in so far as the purchase of the stock goes. There is but little of the stock that is not owned absolutely by the new purchaser.

"The change of management will take effect on the 1st of November. On that day we will assume entire charge of the running of the road. I do not know of any changes in the local offices that will be made. Surely nothing will be done for the present.

"We will put the Rome express back on next Sunday. You will remember the Rome express was once run over this line in connection with our road. It was a local accommodation train between Atlanta and Rome, leaving Atlanta about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and arriving in Rome that night about supper time. Leaving Rome in the morning about 7 or 8 o'clock, the train ran into Atlanta about 10 or 11 o'clock. About the same schedule will be put back into effect. This extra train will be put on next Sunday. It was once a great accom-modation to the local travel between Atlanta and Rome and will doubtless prove so again. There was great opposition to its being taken off, but at the time we didn't see how we could run the train and keep up our other schedules, too, without great loss and were forced to discontinue the express something less than a year ago." Colonel Thomas was in his private car and had quite a party with him, among them being Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Nichol, Vice President A. M. Shook, of the Tennessee Coall, Iron and Rallway Company;

Mrs. Dougles, of Nashville, and Mrs.
Thomas and J. W. Thomas, Jr. They left for New York on the fast mail of the Richmond and Danville last night at 9 o'clock.

OUR GEORGIA AUTUMN. Cleveland Progress: The autumn days, the "days of walling winds" and "brown and sere" meadows, are supposed to produce melancholy. That is not the case up this way, although old White did go to the devil politically. Everybody we see looks well and happy. The mountaineer with his load of chestnuts and cabbage drives along the road cracking his whip and whistling merry tune, thinking of the new dress will buy for his wife, and the theres for the little one that he must not forget when he gets to market. The drover stalks behind his fatted beeves with a lusty halloc at the passers by, and recks not of trouble as his jolly, weather-stained face clearly betokens. The farmer's wagon creaks heavily under its load of corn in the shuck, and the plowboy whistles "Billy in the Low Ground" while he turns the fallow and anticipates the joys of corn-shucking and candy pulling frolics that are close at hand. Telfair Enterprise: Mr. J. K. Williamson tells the following deer story, of which he is both hero and victor. He said that a huge buck paid nocturnal visits to a field of his, and was always shy and cunning enough to evade the snares of the huntsmen. He decided he would have him it such a thing was possible; so he secures a safe rope, marches to the field and climbs a tree in the midst of the old buck's grazing grounds, lashes himself hard and fastito the tree and awaits the coveted prize. Shortly the deer came up, and with a well directed shot he was felled. But, says Brother Williamson, under excitement, buck agues, etc., for the life of him he forgot how he had fastened the rope about him, and there remained for gracious only knows how long, seemingly always, before he could cut loose enough to descend. He will probably never do the like again. The buck weighed 129 pounds.

THE DIXIE FAIR

Now in Full Progress in the Central City of Georgia,

THE CHURCH PEOPLE ARE OBJECTING

To the Action of Council in Keeping Open the Barrooms Late at Night-The Disposition of the Strange Baby, Macon, Ga., October 23.-Special.)-The main buildings throughout the city are draped in bunting from door to roof,, and the national flag flies from almost every building in the business center. This is truly a gala day for Macon, and for Georgia. The fair managers have done well and the proof of their splendid work is to be seen at the park, where a large number of countles of the state have already their exhibits in place and others are coming in on every train.

only formalities about opening day was the procession display by a large number of enterprising people this morning, aidond battalion volunteer troops of the Second Georgia regiment. The battalion formed on Second street a little after 10 o'clock under command of Lieutenant Colonel E. D. Huguenin. Colonel C. M. Wi-ley was officer of the day. The battalion was drawn up in line as a long line of that dsome and expensively decorated carriages passed in review and then the march to the park was taken up, the procession arriving there about 11 o'clock. Old citizens who have seen many a floral display in pro-cession there say that today Macon sur-passed herself. It was distinctively, not a trade display, but an array of individual decorative work that has never been equaled here All seemed to vie with each other in the decorations of their respective carriages, and it is hard to say who made the most creditable showing.

Very little of interest transpired down at the park today. The crowd was very small morning, but was somewhat increased in the afternoon. Comparatively few exhibits are vet in position, and it will be Thursday before things will be in shape. One thing that many of the visitors who have so far arrived are disappointed in is that there will be no racing until next week. The crowd today, however, did not show many visitors, and they will not probably begin arriving until next week. The stock exhibit is hardly considerable yet, but when all exhibitors have come this feature of the fair will be the best that has even been witnessed at a fair in Georgia. Mr Loring Brown, of Bolingbroke, as he has been for many years, will be the chief poultry exhibitor. He has not brought in his exhibit yet, but he says it will be very fine. There is a painful absence of machinery so far, but the machinery hall will be filled before Thursday, and the machinery put to working. Thursday will be drummers' day, and the knights of the grip from every town in the state with their vis-iting brethren, will have it their own way on that day. It is rather early yet to pre-dict just what the success uf the fair will be, but everything points to the bigges exposition in the history of Macon.

That Strange Drowning. The strange catch of Fisherman Riley in the Ocmulgee river yesterday when he found a man hanging by his toes to his trout line below the Macon and Covington bridge, has been investigated by the coroner. Coroner Knight secured Mr. Riley early this morning and went down to the scene of the drowning. The man was found to be a bright mulatto, about forty years of age, with heavy, dark mustache. A large crowd of negroes flocked around the place, but no one was able to identify the man. No bruises or the slightest evidence of violence were to be found on the body. It had the appearance of having been there for a long time and decomposition had already set in. The coroner summoned a jury and held an inquest over the body, the result of which was that the subject, unknown to the jury, came to his death by drowning. A grave was dug under the boughs of an Ocmulgee river willow, and there the body of the unknown negro was buried. The affair has created no little excitement among the ne-They are disposed to look upon i as in some wise associated with the supernatural and groups of them are to be seen about the street corners discussing it. It is indeed a strange case and one that may never be sifted to the bottom.

The Churchmen Moving. The church people of Macon are assuming a very aggressive attitude on the recent action of council in suspending during the fair the ordinance requiring the barrooms to close after 12 o'clock at night, and it would appear from what developed here tonight that they intend to insist upon a re-consideration of last Tuesday' night's ac-tion, when the ordinance was suspended. At the regular meeting of council last night a petition signed by 260 of the most influential church people and prominent citizens generally was presented by a committee of twenty-five, praying that council reconsider and not allow the barrooms to keep open all night during the fair. But there was a quorum of the members present and, therefore, the petition could not be acted upon. Nearly fifty leading church people and temperance workers were present and occupied seats in the council chamber. They represented every Protestant denomination in the city, and ading professional and commercial men of Macon were to be found among the number After waiting for the tardy members for quite a while, Mayor Horne called a meeting of the board for 12 o'clock tomorrow. when it is expected that a quorum of the councilmen will have been able to be present. To say that the church people of Ma-can are worked up over the council's action can are worked up over the council's action in this matter puts it mildly, and sentiment against their action has been materially heightened by the scorching sermons preach-ed by Dr. Alonzo Monk, of the Mulberry Street Methodist church, on last Sunday in which he hit hard and without fear or

Newsy Notes. The resignation of Captain John L Hardeman, of the Floyd Rifles, leaves that time-honored old company without a commanding officer and it is a matter of much salicatude with the men who they will get. They are to a man deeply pained to ose Captain Hardeman. There was never a more popular or efficient man in charge of the Rifles. Captain Hardeman resigned, as has been stated in a previous letter, to accept the majorship of the Second battal-ion, Second regiment. It was an honor that he could scarcely decline as an aspir-ing military man, and he will make a most creditable officer. A committee from the Second regiment taff officers and the Macon Volunteers has under consideration a grand military ball for some night during the fair. If arrang-ed it will be the most brilliant military affair ever given in Macon. It will be held in the Volunteers' armory and will be held in the Volunteers' armory and will be a full dress affair.

Mr. James Butner, of the University of Georgia football team, the bright and popular son of Captain F. M. Butner, is in fown today, having come down from Athens last night to arrange for a football game with Mercer. He went out to the university this morning, but failed to agree upon any terms with them. It was originally intended to arrange a game for November 3d, for the benefit of the visitors vember 3d, for the benefit of the visitors to the fair, but as Mercer hasn't a trainer

The case of B. P. Beckham against Justice of the Peace G. W. Holmes and Detective J. W. Ford, in which the defendants are charged with false inprisonment. was taken up yesterday afternoon in Justice Gerdine's court and is still going on. It is likely to be finished some time tonight as all the evidence has been take and the lawyers have the floor at this writing. The case is exciting a great deal of interest among professional men and court officers.

A right important bill of injunction was filed in the United States court today P. H. Hane & Co., of Winston, N. through their attorneys Steed & Wimberly. The bill is against the Carstorphen Ware-house Company, of this city, and alleges infringement of trade mark. The petition ers claim that in the year 1879 they origi-nated and first sold a brand of tobacco under the name of "Our Mamle" and advertised it as such. Now they come into court with the complaint that T. J. Carstorphen is selling a tobacco under the name of "My Mamle," which to the ordinary observer cannot be distinguished from the original. Petitioners value their trade mark at $5,000 and say ...ey have been damaged to the amount of $2,500. Judge Speer, at his Mt. Afry home, passed an order restraining Carstorphen from selling more tobacco under that name and orders him to show cause at Macon on November 12th why he should not be permanently enjoined from sening it.

THE CONTESTS IN SAVANNAH. The Council About to Elect the Officers

Anyhow. Sayannah, Ga., October 23.—(Special.)— Under the resolution introduced in the city council last week, that body will this week elect the official heads of the city depart-ment. The election takes place tomorrow night, and the fight for several of the of-

There are two or three applicants for almost every one of the the offices. Captain W. S. Rockwell, of the Oglethorpe Light Infantry and Captain G. B. Pritchard are trying to displace Chief John Green, of trying to displace Chief John Green, of the police department, and Foreman T. F. The livellest fight will be made over these two offices, which are the most important that the board has

The object of the election is to fill these offices before the legislature passes a bill which the representative from this county will introduce, to make the officers elective by the incoming council instead of by the outgoing board, as is at present the case.

WHAT ABOUT THIS?

Will It Prove an Obstacle in the Way of Miss Dortch?

Albany, Ga., October 23.—(Special.)—A well-known attorney of this city called the attention of your correspondent today to a section of the legislative act of 1890 which seems to throw a wet blanket on Miss Ellen Dortch's aspiration for the position of private secretary to Governor Atkinson. The law in question will be found on page 102 of acts 1893, and provides that the governor may also appoint his private secretary as his military secre-tary, and commission him with the rank of major. No one questions Miss Dortch's ability to fill the responsible place of private secretary to his excellency. IRISH HOME RULE

Discussed by Hon. Edward Blake at DeGive's Last Night.

INTRODUCED BY CAPTAIN J. F. BURKE

A Large Audience Was Present, and Many Prominent Citizens Occupied Seats on the Platform

"Home rule is the aim and prayer of the people of Ireland." This was the keynote of the eloquent and masterly address of Hon. Edward Blake, the member of the British parliament, delivered to a large and representative audience at DeGive's opera house last night. He rehearsed the struggles and hardships of the Emerald island and without appealing to sympathy, beyond the measure of an accurate portrayal of the situation, he aroused no slight degree of enthusiasm. The audience was deeply impressed by the eloquence of the speaker and was moved to a signal outbreak of feeling by his graphic description of the sorrows and vicissitudes of Ireland.

He traced the growth of the Irish party in the house of parliament, its frequent interruptions and discouragements, and the hope for ultimate success which was held out before it in the next election.

On the Platform.

Seated on the platform, with the speaker of the evening, were the following prominent citizens: Governor W. J. Northen, Mayor John B. Goodwin, Dr. Henry McDonald, Father B. J. Keiley, Captain L. E. O'Keefe, Judge T. P. Westmoreland, E. P. Chamberlin, A. D. Adair, A. L. Kontz, T. F. Corrigan, Captain J. F. Burke, John Colvin, W. C. Glenn, Rev. Henry Quigg, John Ryan, Judge J. H. Lumpkin and several others. The curtain was lifted promptly at 8 o'clock and a cheer went up from the au-dience as the distinguished speaker of the evening was recognized.

As soon as sflence was restored Colonel T. F. Corrigan, one of the brightest of Atlanta's younger generation of Irishmen stepped to the front. He referred to the fact that Atlanta on three separate occasions had been honored by visits from members of the British parliament, and on the present occasion she was more than happy to extend her greeting to the distinguished representative of that body. In presenting Captain J. F. Burke to introduce the speaker of the evening, he characterized him as an eloquent descendant of the illustrious leader who had shed such renown upon the cause of Irish liberty.

In a graceful, dignified and impressive nanner, Captain Burke discharged the honorable commission of introducing the distin guished speaker. The spirit of the Irish people, said he, was identical with that of the American colonies, and Irishmen, during the revolution, had reinforced the sword of Washington with a courage that truly illustrated the spirit and temper of their country. Though Irishmen had prospered in America they had suffered under persecution at home. It gave him pleasure to present their friend and champion, who would truthfully narrate their sufferings and speak for them, Hon. Edward Blake.

The appleuse that greated the distinguish-

The applause that greeted the distinguished speaker was overwhelming. Tall and erect, with a massive head and raven locks that fall in clusters over his neck and forehead, and eyes that resemble those of an eagle, his personality is decidedly picturesque and striking.

Ireland's Great Struggle. He waited a few seconds for the applause to subside. Then he began: "Ladies and Gentlemen—you are fond of appropriating to yourselves in this coun-try the title of Americans; but north of you is a large strip of country in which I was born, and I hope you will permit me also to call myself an American. (Laughter.) We must recognize our kinship. I am fond of speaking to Americans, because I realize the bond of sympathy and broth-erhood between us, but especially do I love to speak to them because it was here that the great modern system of federal and state governments was first evolved and demonstrated to the world. (Applause.) our own country we have adopted your pattern; for neither in this country not in the one north of you could a centralized government administer its laws in justice to all concerned. For the first time it is my happy lot to speak in the south. (Applause.) It has long appeared to me, from the study of your people, that traits and characteristics were possessed by you in common with those of suffering Ireland. Ardent, emotional, chiv-alrous and with a deep, abiding love of home and country, these are qualities that blend together the characteristics of Ire-land and the south. (Applause.) The history of the south is interesting to every thoughtful mind. The problems with which have had to deal, the destructive war that has wasted your fields, the hor rors of reconstruction that have been placed upon you, and the splenoid mira-cle of your advancement, is illustrated in the growth of this city, command the respectful attention, if they challenge the admiration of the world. (Applause.) Your resources of for est and field and mineral wealth are inex haustible, and yet I hazard nothing I say that you would be unworthy of your prosperity if you were not willing to sacrifice it all, if need be, for the freedom of your homes. (Applause.) "Time permits only a mere outline of struggle that Ireland has made and is still making for home rule. The island of which I speak has not passed through any desolating war, but she has gradually wasted through suffering and during the last half century has decreased to the extent of nearly 50 per cent of her population. Though slightly improved in her condition, the scale of living in Ireland is lower than in any civilized country in the world. For generations the people of Ireland have been ruled without the consent of that island. There was a time when liberty existed only in name, religion was proscribed, property denied and education refused spirit of liberty, however, was not ex-tinguished, and ultimately she acquired an independence through the zeal and patriotsm of Henry Grattan. It was not effective however, because of the grasp that Englan still retained. Later on the union between England and Ireland was carried through parliament. The measure, however, had n moral validity and never acquired the least justification. For eighty years from the date of the union the government was one of coercion. There were a few men who saw clearly, but they came too late to apply the remedy. Emancipation to the Catholics of Ireland was promised, but not until years afterward was this promise redeemed. They were called upon to pay their tribute to the English government and to support an alien church. Such was the boasted generosity and goodness of heart of

"The struggle for self-government in Ireland has assumed different phases. Th first was that of turbulent resistence and insurrection. At last they secured a leader, with the last acts of whose life I was not in sympathy, but who was a great factor in the Irish cause, Charles Stewart Parnell. He proposed an Irish parliamen-tary party, and placed the cause within the reach of victory. Their platform was to accept no offices, to refuse all pay and to receive as their compensation the happiness of representing Ireland. conservative parties were dominated by the aristocracy. It was necessary to convince the people that the Irish question must be faced. Then came a change. The popular suffrage was enlarged and the masses were instructed from the platform. The Irish party gained, and members of parliament were pledged to self-government for Ireland. Gladstone, the great English statesman, announced that he was kindly disposed and was ready to aid the Irish in their endeavor. At this juncture his celebrated home-rule bill was introduced in the house of parliament and defeated with the overflow of the liberal government in the subsequent election. During the next six years coercion fol-lowed. It looked as if home rule was doomed, but the alliance between British liberal and the Irish national party continued. The cause of home rule ad-vanced. In the election of 1892 a majority of 40 was secured in the house of parlia ment, and the home-rule measure passed by a vote of that body. It was defeated, however, after four days, in the house of lords. They wanted it referred to the peo-ple for special advice and instruction, as if the voice of the people had not already been distinctly declared. We refused to obey their directions, and are patiently waiting for the next election. We are not id but are paving the wan unobstructed declaration the people on the question of home rule. The lords will not resist an argument of this kind, but will surrender their opposition as soon as the will of the people is declared as they already know it to be entertained."

The speaker closed by appealing to the south for a sympathetic feeling towards Ireland in the great struggle that she was making.

A CURIOUS SPOT. A Huge Lime Sink Found in a Peak of a Mountain. Ala., October 23.-(Special.)-On White Oak mountain, which is one of a range that extends for several miles south-west of this city, is one of nature's most wonderful freaks. It is a tremendous hole or bowl known to the few who have been aware of it's existence as "The Lime Sink."

The "sink" takes the place of the peal of the mountain and is almost perfectly round. Its diameter at the top is estimated at a quarter of a mile and its bottom which round. Its diameter at the top is estimated at a quarter of a mile and its bottom which is level, comprises an area of about three acres. The walls average a height of from eight hundred to a thousand feet and are very precipitous, an ascent being possible only at certain places. The bottom is covered with large trees and heavy undergrowth, as are also the sides where they are not too rocky and steep. Vines and wild flowers grow on the bottom and sides in the greatest profusion and the spot is a very pleturesque one.

From all appearances the "sink" has been there for a century. It is situated about eight miles from Anniston, but being in a wild and unfrequented portion of the mountains few people knew that it was in existence. This peculiar hole furmished the basis for considerable excitement a few days since. Fire broke out on the mountains near it, making a great smoke and burning away stumps which supported several large rocks. These fell and rolled with a mighty rumbling that was heard plainly in Anniston and Oxford, whereupon some practical jokers with vivid imaginations told of this mysterious basin and started reports that it was the crater of a sleeping volcano which was shaking off its lethargy and preparing to get in action. There was a great deal of talk about it. Some started out to investigate but found it was to far and came back, while others said they were as near as they wanted to be. Many people felt very much relieved when they found that it was all a hoax.

It was too busy gathering and homblogizing its rapidly increasing population, to consider instances of individual suffering. The Hebrew children's asylum, crowning Washington Heights, is a sermon in stone. The pinched faces of a number of abandoned children are being nighty kissed into sleep by the lips of pure and gentle women in the Jernie Inman orphanage. PASSED THROUGH ATLANTA YESTERDAY

To Be Reinterred in Oxford, Mississippi At the Union Depot the Body of the Learned Jurist Rests

The remains of the late Associate Justice L. Q. C. Lamar passed through Atlanta yesterday en route to Oxford, Miss., for re-

The body came in on the Central train yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, accompanied by the son of the late associate justice and remained in the union depot until the Georgia Pacific train went out yester-

As is well known, Rose Hill cemetery, in Macon, was the resting place of the body from the time of the death, the late as-sociate justice having died there. At the time of his death the people of Mississippi expressed a great desire for the remains to be brought to Oxford, his home, for inter-

The friends and admirors of the states man in Macon and throughout Georgia were anxious for the soil of the state in which he died to become the resting place of the man who graced the senate, the supreme bench and every calling of life in which he found himself.

For a long time it has been known hat the body would be taken to the old family burying grounds, in Oxford, and day before yesterday the remains were exhumed and prepared for shipment. The casket was placed in a new box and that, covered with floral gifts of Macon admirers, reached Atlanta yesterday. At the depot a party of two or three who had been advised of the coming of the body, was present, and a new mound of flowers, the gift of Atlanto lovers. was placed on the covered casket. The remains were lifted from the Central train and watched by the son and two or three friends until the Georgia Pacific went out in the afternoon, when the journey was resumed to Oxford, where the body will arrive this afternoon.

In Oxford extensive arrangements have been made for the reinterment of the statesman, who was so dearly beloved by the people of that city. No one except Mr. Davis, the late president of the confederacy, was more beloved by the people of Mississippi than Hon. L. Q. C. Lamar, and it has always been one of the wishes of every Mississippian that the body be brought-home to rest in the earth of that state. Now that the remains are on the way, the people of Oxford are making arrangements for the reinterment. Governor Stone and all of the statehouse officers, with all the leading citizens of the state, will be present when the event occurs.

The full details of the reinterment have not yet been announced, but will be given out tomorrow through the press.

NATIONAL DRILL TOURNAMENT Memphis Getting Up One to Last a

Memphis, Tenn., October 23.—The local post of confederate veterans and the Chickasaw Guards have jointly undertaken to give a national drill tournament in Mem-phis next spring on a scale never before attempted in this country. The contest will continue a week. Prizes of great value will be hung up. General Kellar Anderson, of Coal Creek fame, has been placed in charge of arrangements as secretary and from now on until the date fixed, which is May 31st, he will devote himself exclusively to the work. Prizes for all branches of military will be offered. A unique feature will be a contest between a veteran company of federal and of confederates. At the same time of the drill a musical festival will Club, of Memphis.

SOME SOUTHERN STORIES.

The following story is told of the late Zeb Vance's first political campaign: was a great victory for the young whig, Zeb Vance, when he defeated the democrat, W. W. Avery, for congress before the war. Avery said everywhere in the joint canvass that Vance would stand no show, as he couldn't overcome the 2,000 democratic ma-jority in the district. Vance, however, was elected by 2,000 majority himself, and in the elected by 2,000 majority himself, and in the joint meeting, at Asheville, of the rival can-didates, customary to be held in those days after an election, to make friends and heal old wounds, Jance made the most of his success. He said in effect: "My opponent charged that I would be snowed under, but it was vice versa. I remind myself of the Caldwell county 'possum, which an indig-nant mountaineer told me about. Said, he, 'I stretched that 'possum's neck tell I thought he was dead; I skinned him, and biled him for three hours, but don't you think that when I took the led off'n the pot, the cussed little devil was a-settin' up there on its hind legs, and had licked up all the gravy?" And so the witty young cam-paigner intimated that while his opponents had tried to down him, he had licked up all the gravy in a political way.

There is a rather disagreeable situation in Raleigh. Thursday night Mr. W. 12. Christian, of The News and Observer, in quest of news about the fusion ticket, called at the office of ex-Judge Spier Whitaker, where the latter and Mr. Marion Butler were in conference, and at the conclusion of his visit announced that he should print what he had seen and heard. Judge Whita-ker told him it would not be gentlemanly to do so. Mr. Christian did so. In a card in The News and Observer yesterday Judge Whitaker criticised him and Mr. Christian replied in the same issue of the paper. There are references in the articles to shotguns, the cartel, etc., Mr. Christian's card concluding with: "Let him face it. I don't

POLICE ON PARADE. THE GRAND CONCERT

Inspection by the Commissioners.

ARREST OF A WELL-KNOWN YOUNG MAN CAMPOBELLO THE TOAST OF THE TOWN

Is Thought to Have Borrowed a Watch from a Friend and to Have Afterwards Pawned It.

Atlanta's police force went out on parade yesterday afternoon. Dressed up in new winter suits with shining helmets and heavy overcoats, 150 men marched from headquarters and lined themselves up for inspection by the board of police commissioners. All the departments of the force had been called out. They were aligned in the large enclosure in the rear of the police station, and a splendid sight they made, these men in whose hands is the peace and order of the city.

The mounted men, in charge of Sergeant White, came first; next came Captain Manley and his day watch, then Captain Thompson commanding the night watch, and be-hind him Captain Moss marched and swung his men into line. There was a good crow his men into line. There was a good crown of visitors to look on at the parade, and the fine appearance of Chief Connolly and his men called forth numerous compli-

The inspection by the board of commis sioners, with Captain English at their head, was very rigid. Every detail of the patrolman's appearance was examined. The missioners were much pleased at the neat looks of all the men.

"The force put up a splendid show," said Commissioner George Johnson, "and I think all of the commissioners are pleased. I know I am, and it makes me feel good to know that our city has such a set of men as were out there on parade."

Held for Larceny.

Last night Patrolman Jordan arrested Dick Allen, a well-known young man, and he was sent to police station on a charge of larceny.

"I know nothing about the charge against him," said the patrolman, "except what I heard from Ballin Ray, of Judge Bloodworth's court. I was approached by him this afternoon and he showed me a warrant for Dick Allen, which charged him with larceny. Ray stated, I think, that he had pawned a watch belonging to one of his friends. Deputy Sheriff Green was looking for Allen also this afternoon. He is wanted by him on a similar charge. It was upon the information that I received from the bailiff that I made the arrest.'

The young man was very indignant over his arrest. "I have done nothing in the world for which to be arrested," he said.
"I have not the slightest idea why I am sulted this way. It is an outrage, and I intend to see that something is done about it." The patrolman will take the affair in charge and investigate it today.

Carried Back Home.

Last night at 9 o'clock, accompanied by Officer Ball, Thomas Pettis, the young doctor who has been detained in this city since Sunday because of his unbalanced mental condition, left for his home in Plainfield, N. J. Since Monday the young man has taken care of by several members of the Young Men's Christian Association, assisted by Chief Connolly. A telegram was received from his parents asking that he be brought home immediately, and stating that they would be responsible for all expenses incurred.

Pettis was delighted at the prospect of returning home and says that he intends to remain there hereafter.

Sense of the Word.

A Great Stroke in the Name of Charity. Judge Calhoun's Address-Detailed Report of the Evening.

The Campobello concert at the Grand last night was all that it was expected to be word.

The house was packed from pit to dome with the most fashionable and appreciative audience that has filled the Grand opera-house for many a day. The boxes presented splendid spectacle of life and light and the whole scene was one of beauty and love-

The concert was a splendid one, from both a musical and a financial standpoint. Judge A. E. Calhoun introduced the programme of the evening with a very excelent address. He spoke of the purpose for which the concert was given, it being to raise funds for the establishment of a children's ward in the Grady hospital. In touching upon this project of charity, Judge Calhoun said that it was the most deserving movement that could be started.

Judge Calhoun made one of the most eloquent speeches of its kind ever before heard in Atlanta. He spoke with great earnestness about the movement recently started in this city for a reformatory school for boys. He said the question had been asked where the money was coming from. This, said he, was a needless question in the city of Atlanta, for in this great and growing city the question of charity had never been raised but there was a prompt and ready response on the part of the plucky citizens of the town.

Judge Calhoun drew a pretty picture of charity in the analogy of the monument in New Orleans to Margaret. He said:

"I saw in our southern city of New Orleans a strange monument, the figure of woman, dressed in the plain and simple garb of a workwoman, her hands outstretched upon the heads of two children Underneath were the simple name Margaret. 'Who is this Margaret,' said I to a passer-by. 'A baker woman,' he re-plied, 'and kept a shop just over there. She made the sweetest bread in all the city, and could have made a fortune had she not been so good-hearted. She never turned a beggar from her door, and every hungry child in the city felt the bounty of her beneficent hand. She scattered her plenty as a spendthrift: "Did good by stealth and blushed to find it fame." To this humble woman, those good people raised that monument—a monument of good deeds and of love."

Judge Calhoun spoke in highest terms of praise of the worthy women who had gone to work to give the entertainment of the evening. He closed with a touching tribute to the spirit of the occasion, and said that the greatest of all the graces was, indeed, charity.

Judge Calhoun's speech was a great hit. He was loudly applauded, and was given an ovation on the clever turn of his speech. It was, indeed, an eloquent and touching address, and warmed up the audience with genuine appreciation of the general purpose and spirit of the delight-

The Concert in Detail.

The Fifth Infantry band is here to stay. So much the better, and it is to be hoped it will be heard often, for the manner in which its selections were played called for instantaneous applause and proved that Atlanta may look forward to many a delightful con-

The chorus sang with expression, spirit and good will. The conventional, "Is there for me?" was walved by the ensem ble of good Samaritans, who assisted in the cause of charity and gave their services in a philanthropic spirit. The trio from "Attilla," sung by Miss Heidt, Mr. Owens and Edward Barnes, was so well rendered that the large audience clamored for its repetition. The singers, however, contented themselves with bowing their acknowledgments.

After the excellent rendering of this trio Mrs. Burbank appeared and sang, as she always does, charmingly, winning her hearers by the soft, coaxing tones of her con-tralto voice, whilst her husband brought down the house with his broad interpretation of Gounod's "Cavatina," rendered with much taste and traditional "couleur." Mr. Burbank's fine baritone has improved greatly since his public appearance last spirng, especially so in his upper register. He sang a high G-flat with unconscious effort and with power sufficient to fill any large auditorium. In response to a unanimous call for "more" he responded with a touching ballad.

Miss Heidt has studied faithfully, and last night reaped the benefit of her perseverance. It was not without a tremor of apprehension that she came forward to interpret that most difficult of soprano themes, Benedict's "Carnival of Venice." With dexterous skill she went through this trying ordeal, executing to perfection the trills, roulades and staccati with which this beautiful composition abounds. It was with a tremor of modest pride that she withdrew amidst a storm of enthusiastic applause at the termination of the brilliant cadenza which crowns the sing bars of the morceau, and after being called again and again she responded by singing in magnificent style, Arditi's valse-L'Estase. Her accompaniments were played by her instructor.

Mr. William Owens was in grand voice and sang with all that fervor to which Atlanta audiences are familiar in this gentleman. His encore to the "Siciliana" proved a gem, and the "Miserere" scene was excellently sung. Miss Bessie Pierce is recognized as an artist of merit. In the sextet from "Lucia" in which all the par-ticipants sang their respective parts right well, her voice rang out in splendid style. This glorious number was most emphatically redemanded. Signor Aldo Randeggar held his audience spell-bound by his magnificent playing. His execution is marvelous whilst his interpretation is poetic. What a beautiful rendition of Lysberg's barcarolle he gave as an encore to Listz's "Polonaise."

Judge Van Epps's Speech.

Between the first and second parts of the rogramme Judge Howard Van Epps made a speech concerning the charitable object of the entertainment. He spoke as follows: "Ladies and Gentlemen-On the stone in Westminster Abbey covering the grave of Mr. George Peabody there is inscribed this sentence, uttered by him in als old age, and recorded by a friend who heard it: 'I have prayed my heavenly Father day by day that I may be enabled before I die to how my gratitude for the blessings which show my gratitude for the diessings which He has bestowed upon me by doing some great good to my fellow nien.' He succeed-ed in making his goodness conspicuous, and his memory fragrant in the thought of the

"It is a natural instinct in a cultured and refined mind to be humane. Inhumanity is an expression of barbarity. A "ity in its first beginnings grows like a boy. It is a hungry, greedy, selfish cormorant. It has neither the means, the time, nor the inclination to consider the weakness and the woes of others. After a while it outstrips its own selfishness, and begins to turn its attention to the amelioration of the condition of the sound or the week of civic progress. A NEW LEAGUE.

The Baseball People Are Beginning to Get a Move on Them.

TWO OF THE MANAGERS ARE IN TOWN

With Plans Which They Think Will Win Out Next Sesson-They Want a League with Western Cities in It.

essful managers of the Southern League of baseball clubs last year were in Atlanta yesterday trying to work up an interest in the national game again.

They are George Stallings, of Nashville and Ollie Beard, who managed the Charles

Both men have been well over a circui they have picked out and have found the people everywhere not only ripe, but extremely anxious, for baseball in '95. The succe of the game last year has impressed those who are in the habit of going hebin clubs that money can throughout the country ne and that a better lot can be put up than ever before. country next better lot of close of the Western league both Stallings and Beard, who closed with Kansas City, have been working over the territory in the interest of the game and they are now in Atlanta for the purpose of seeing what can be done.

"The chances for a successful league next year are better than ever before," said Stallings, talking about the matter yes-terday. "Of course to make the league a go we must have good towns, and since we left Kansas City we have been looking out for them. What do you think of a league with Atlanta as the southern end and Memphis or Indianapolis as the and Memphis or Indianapolis as northern or western end?"

"Wouldn't it make the jump too long?" we asked.

Atlanta never wakes the weikin win her ram's horn until she is confronted by tae walls of some Jericho which must be made to come down.

"The Grady hospital, as now instituted, is a refuge for sick men and women. It has no provision whatever for sick children. Fellow citizens, there is the Jericho wall! It is a superb refuge within its limitations. When I walked through it the other day I was speechless with surprise and delight. It is spacious, well lighted, well "entilated. There is not perhaps a cleaner human habitation on the face of the globe. I believe a fastidious lady could not gather upon her lace handkerchief a fleck of dust en any part of its floors. They shine so they make the impression on you of gleaming white teeth laughing in your face. The cots are as white as the light. In the two wards appropriated to the two sexes of the colored people, the black faces of the patients look like great jet beads crested on mounds of snow. In the white wards for men and women the appointments are so dainty and the air so agreeably seasoned with the odor of delicate flowers, producing an effect so grateful and exhilirating that you could not avoid saying bright and pleasant things to the sufferers if youtried. The matron and her assistants—trust this will not be repeated to them—are so pretty, so gentle and refined in appearance that I half hoped I would be smitten with something before I left, and impounded for a period of nursing. And the kitchen! I got hungry, looking at the gleaming pans. Some fried chicken was being dished up and it glowed and sputtered like golden dollars of our addies in course of being minted. This is no exaggerated picture. Three hundred ladies here present know I am telling the truth. I reflected how Henry Grady's black eyes would have fashed had he been with me, and how his rhetoric would have scintillated had he been telling you about it tonight instead of his humble friend "That's the same mistake most people make, and it is a big mistake. It wou take near the mileage of any southern league we have yet had. Suppose we form an eight-club league, with Atlanta, Chatta-nooga, Memphis, Nashville, Evansville would have scinniated has a revenue of his humble friend
"Bus despite this recognition of well-doing which a sense of justice exacts from my lips, the fact remains that there is no provision made for sick children. They must be herded with their elders, many of them very old people, and must see much, hear much and experience much not suited to their infancy or conducive to their recovery. There is a crying demand for a children's ward. The very peculiarities of sick childhood produces distress to sick old people. It is best, infinitely best, for both, that they should be apart. The question has arisen, and is under consideration by Atlanta people—shall we separate them? There are hundreds of cultivated and rerefined men and women in this audience who are conscious of an aspiration like George Peabody's—"to do some great good for helr fellow men." How Christ-like it is to lift up a sick child and call the hue of health back to his wasted cheek. The children's ward is going to be built. Let your minds run forward a few years and take a peep into it. The little cots, some of them only a few spans long, and white as the driven snow. Inc. clean, gleaming floor. The little cots, some of them only a few spans long, and white as the driven snow. Inc. clean, gleaming floor. Terre Haute, Louisville and possibly Indian apolis? Every one of these are good towns and are all hungry for ball. Some of them have not had a game of ball in years and the support would be good. Besides, in that run we would have at least three Sunday towns and when the southern or eastern end went west every club would have a Sunday game. "But Louisville is in the National League and you can't get in there," was suggested.

"Louisville is in the National League now, but the indications are that her fran chise will be taken from her and she will be paid for it and some other town will take her place there. The people of that town can't support a national league club, but they would do well in a minor league and could secure a franchise if the proposed combination was perfected. "Indianapolis is in the Western league and Brush will keep her there.' and Brush will keep her there.

"That is the only doubtful one of the lot. Brush may keep that city in that association, and if he does, of course, it which are for twelve cots, endowed by loving hearts which reach out after 'the touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that is still.' Perhaps the sick child that fills your cot may some day say something to your listening ears that will have the flavor of the star-depths in it. Three hundred ladies, too, belong to the society and pay a membership fee of $3 a year, and that is something. Cards will be distributed by the ushers tonight, and it may suit the pleasure of many hundred more to help the children by endowing a cot or enrolling their names. Nobody is asked to sign them, for I am forbidden to beg a single cent. It is merely a suggestion. Whatever may come of it, the children's ward will be built in the fullness of God's appointed time and will be conducted her mileage would be.'

"What about backing for clubs in those towns?" was asked. "In Memphis Armour is anxious to get in again, and has gone so far as to secure the services of George burbridge as man-ager for the coming season. In Nashville I have the best backing imaginable. In Evansville one of the largest and richest corporations in that city wants to get behind the club, and will put in a good, strong team. Terre Haute has a good backing in the persons of the owners of The Press, one of the leading papers in the city If Louisville has to go out of the National League, then the same people who are be hind the club there will gladly come into the new organization. Chattanooga is about the only weak town of which I know, but am satisfied that it can be induced to come n if it sees that the association is a certainty. "The league or association can be made one of the greatest successes yet known in baseball. Take that western league this year. At the end of every game, before one cent was taken from the box, a check for 10 per cent of the gate receipts was sent to Johnson, the president, and when the league season closed there was $25,000 in the treasury of the league. Eight thousand dollars of this was left for next year as a nucleus for the association and the balance was divided among the owners of the clubs. Every club in the league, with one or two exceptions, made money, and big money. Jimmy Manning, who was in Savannah, put up his diamonds and started the Kansas City team on a shoe string. He came out over $12,000 to the good. Dennis Long at Toledo made, it is thought, about $9,000, and so it went. An organization on the same line would pan out well in the south, and I think the best towns have about been selected. If there is any trouble about Louisville and Indianapolis, a six-club league can easily be formed containing the other cities named." "My idea," put in Beard, "is to form a four-club league. The people down this way have never seen one, and that is the only objection they could possibly have to it. If they were to see one they would take to it quickly. Put Atlanta, Nashville, Mem-phis and Evansville in a four-club league and make a schedule of 120 games, nine to be played at home and nine away home, and you have something that will catch the people. It would give them just enough rest from the game and the rest would not be so long that it would cause the people to lose interest in the game. I ment and the combined efforts of these two artists must be heard in order to understand the result accomplished.

This magnificent concert in the cause of a noble charity, commencing at 8:1b o'clock terminated with a suparb rendition of tife prison scene from "Il Trovatore," in which M.33 Bessie Pierce, Mr. Owens and the chorus all covered themselves with glory. It was on the whole a great concert in a noble cause. To each one who participated is due a thankful recognition for an evening delightfully spent and calling forth on all sides praise and thanks. would like very much to see a four-club league, and am sure that it would please the people generally." "How about players?" was asked.

"How about players?" was asked.
"Oh, the woods will be full of them and they will come cheap too. We can get all of the young players we want and won't have to make a salary limit of more than $1,20°. Players don't find jobs as plentiful and as remunerative as jobs as plentiful and as remunerative as they did once."

Heard is anxious to come to Atlanta and take charge of the team. He is convinced that Atlanta is one of the best towns in the south and says that in a league composed of the cities he has suggested there will be a fine opportunity for money to those who are behind it. He will probably have a talk with those interested tomorrow and will see what he can do. will see what he can do.

ACTIVELY AT WORK.

REMARKABLE EXPERIENCE OF REV. W. 4 CHAPIN, OF CHATHAM.

His Interesting Story of His Prostra tion and Restoration to Health.

From The State Journal, Springfield, Ill. From The State Journal, Springhesia, In:
In the pretty little village of Chatham, Sangamon county, there lives a Baptist divine whose snow white hair is the one outward sign that he has encroached upon the days beyond the allotted three score years and ten. His clear eye, keen mental faculties and magnificient physique all bear witness to a life, well and nobly spent. This witness to a life, well and nobly spent. This pioneer in God's eternal vineyard is Rev. W. J. Chapin, whose seventy-two years are crowded with noble deeds in the Christian ministry.

To a State Journal representative who had occasion to ask him something of his career in the ministry, Mr. Chapin talked in a peculiarly interesting strain. 'The subject of his fine physique was broached by his interviewer and with increasing earn-estness he said that in spite of the indications to the contrary, his life had not all been sunshine and good health.

"As my present appearance testifies, I was fortunate in the possession."

vigorous constitution. In my earlier years I scarcely knew what it meant to be sick, and I was almost a perfect stranger to any kind of medicine or tonic. As is too often the case, I overestimated my physical resources, and when it was too late learned that I had overdrawn my health account. The crisis came about eighteen years ago. At the time, I was preaching the gospel from the pulpit, and I became suddenly so ill that I was compelled to stop before my sermon was finished. It was a bad case of nervous prostration, and for a time my friends and family were greatly exercised over my condition. Complete rest was imperative, and to divert my mind from my active ministerial duties, Mrs. Chapin and I planned and took a long trip. My health was sufficiently restored by this diversion to resume work, but I was not the same man. I shall never forget that awful experience. It is hard to describe my feelings so that others can have a conception of them. I felt absolutely worthless, physical-ly and mentally. I had so lost control of my muscles that my fingers would involuntarily release their grip upon a pen, and my hand would turn over with absolutely no volition on my part.

"About two years ago, to intensify matters, I was seized with a severe attack of la grippe. I recovered only partially from it and had frequent returns of that indescribable feeling which accompanies and follows that strange malady. I looked in vain for something to bring relief and finally I read an account of Dr. Williams's Pink Pills for Pale People. Something seemed to tell me that they would do me good, and I commenced using them. They gave me additional strength from the start, and toned up my system from a condition of almost ditional strength from the start, and toned up my system from a condition of almost absolute prostration so that I was able to again resume my duties as a minister. I was so unaccustomed to taking medicine that I did not take the pills as regularly as I should have, and yet my improvement was marvelous. I am now preaching at Forest City and Loami, and in addition to the exacting character of this work itself, I ride ten or fifteen miles on the way there and back."

"Indianapoils is in the case of the at Brush will keep her there."

"That is the only doubtful one of the at. Brush may keep that city in that as ociation, and if he does, of course, it annot come into the southern combine. But if he does, it won't be a hard matter of find another good town close to one of he sections of the proposed association. Choxville is anxious to come in, and that would make the southern end more compact than ever."

"Now, you people keep on talking about long jumps," continued Mr. Stallings. "Let's see how this would be? A close figuring shows that the average jump is less than three hundred miles. That is 'lots' less than any southern league ever showed up. Take Atlanta in the east, for instance, and see her move about in this section. To Chattanooga she has 140 miles to move. Then, as she goes from Chattanooga to Memphis, she would have 270 miles and from Memphis to Nashville 240. From Atlanta to Nashville, if the trip was made without a halt, sne would have 290 miles. So, you see, that playing within the circuit the longest jump would be less than the 300 miles.

"But how would it be in the west? Among those clubs suggested 165 miles covers the greatest distance, while some of the jumps would be only seventy-five miles. Put Atlanta over there, where she has three Sunday games on a trip and see how short

YESTERDAY'S RACES.

YESTERDAY'S RACES. Well-Contested Events at Washington-Other Races.

Washington, October 23.—Cloudy weather kept down the attendance at the fifty day's races of the Virginia Jockey Club, and only a fair sized crowd was present. The track was very fast, and the ma-jority of the races on the card were well contested. The knowing ones guessed three of the winners, and there were no shots longer than 8 to 1. The third, which was a dash of five and a half furlongs, for maiden two-year-olds, close fought from start to finish. Golden Gate, the 8-to-5 favorite, got off with a Gate, the 8-to-5 favorite, got off with a slight lead, but was quickly joined by Amsterdam. They ran the back stretch, around this turn and into the homestretch as though harnessed together. True Penny caught the pair in the last furiong and won in a hot finish by a length, with Golden Length haif a length in front of Amsterdam. There were too many looking for a long-shot on Tree Top at 50 to 1, and the odds were hammered to 20 to 1. Midgely rode finely and landed Vent awinner by less than a length, beating the bunch in front of the stand. ATLANTA, GA., October 24, 1894.

A Good Resolution.

The present low price of cotton will have one good result: It has settled the farmers of Georgia in the determination to increase their food crops in fu-

In the columns of at least fifty weekly exchanges, published in this state, this determination on the part of the farmers is plainly expressed, and if it shall be adhered to, there is no doubt that another year will find Georgia farmers in better condition than ever. The resolution to make the farm self-sustaining by devoting more attention to the home supply feature, is not confined to any section, but prevails throughout the farming districts. Many farmers curtailed their cotton acreage this year and gave their best energies to the raising of stock and other farm supplies heretofore neglected. All of these farmers are now in easy circumstances and are doing well. Their example has made an impression on some of their less fortunate brethren, and the result is a change for the better.

Wherever the much-vaunted-and little practiced-"hog and hominy" campaign has been followed, the verdict has been in favor of the men enlisted in it. They were not, to any great extent, affected by the sweeping reduction in the cotton market, though, of course, they felt it along with the rest; for they did not give their land unreservedly to the production of cotton. They raised supplies for home, and they came out ahead.

It is strange that here in Georgia, where the best of grass is abundant, stockraising is merely an incident to farm life-a by-play, as it were. All the conditions are favorable; it has been fully demonstrated that it means money in the farmer's pocket, and is a stepping stone to independence; and yet, up to this time, it has been persisterfully neglected. Now, that the farmers are giving it the attention deserves, or, at least, have resolved to do so, we look for rich results, and they are nearer to us than might be imagined.

The farmers have a safe guide in the fact that nearly all who have raised home supplies year after year, are prac tically out of debt, and "in clover," compared to the all-cotton producers. If they will keep the resolution formed by many of them, to give this matter more thought and active work another year, they will find that the day of prosperity on the farm is not a dream, but a rich reality.

Helping the Exposition.

The Knoxville Journal is doing splenflid work for the exposition in East Tennessee. It is now making an effort to interest the business men of Knoxville, and, indeed, the varied industrial Interests of all of that rich section, to unite in making a display of the vast resources of East Tennessee in Atlanta next year. It urges the erection of an independent building to be constructed of East Tennessee marble, coal and hard wood. The business men of Knoxville have taken hold of the idea in earnest, and if the plan materializes, and it now seems that It will, East Tennessee will have one of the most attractive and unique exhibits at the exposition.

The objects of the exposition, the development of the resources of the source, turning the tide of foreign commerce through southern channels and establishing closer relations with Europe, South America and the West Indies, are get ly understood and appreciated, and the certainty of accomplishing these objects depends only upon the prompt action and energy of southern people in response to the call of the zealous pioneers of this imortant work. The international character of the exposi tion has already been established. Vene zuela, a republic three times the size of France, with a population of nearly 3,000, 000, and one of the richest countries in agricultural products and minerals on the globe has decided to be fully represented there and government officials look for other govnt displays from each of the other South American republics. Mexico and Cen-tral America will be represented, and in all probability the displays will surpass anything ever exhibited in the United

This is the south's opportunity. While This is the south's opportunity. While extending invitations to the north, west and foreign countries to join hands with us, we should not lose sight of the fact that an extensive display of the south's wonderful resources is necessary to enlist capital and enterprise in their immediate development. It is the duty of the people of every southern state to devote themselves assiduously to the promotion of this great work until complete exhibits are arranged and the future of our favored land as the center of mining, manufacturing and commercial interests of the world is assured.

Other states are taking the same inerest in the matter of being properly represented at the Cotton States and International exposition. The legislatures of South Carolina and Alabama meet next month and will, no doubt, authorize state exhibits from each of these states.

The south never had a better opportunity to secure the advantages to be derived from an adequate display of its resources than now, and it is to be hoped that every southern state will be properly represented at the exposition next year.

Now, and Then.

It will be observed that all of the goldbug organs in their effort to make it appear that the contraction of the currency to the gold standard basis does not work injury or loss to the people, argue that the change makes no material difference, in that a dollar on the new basis will do so much more than a dollar on the old basis, as to cause in effect, no change in its purchasing power. This being taken as a premise, the people are told that they are just as well off under the gold standard as they were under the double standard .

The Baltimore Herald says: The Atlanta Constitution puts it this way: Twenty-five dollars in gold pays for ounds of cotton, and $25 pays more debts than it would twenty years ago." Yes but $25 will buy more in the markets than it ever would before in the history of this Tais is all very well, but let us make little more detailed examination into the situation.

Taxes are the same under the single gold standard as they were under the double standard. The cost of professional services has not depreciated. The man who owes a debt contracted when a dollar was worth a dollar, now has to pay it when the same dollar is worth much more, while his ability to pay the debt has depreciated in the same proportion to the increase which the creditor derives. A farmer who had a $50 account to meet five years ago, sold one bale of cotton to do it Now it takes nearly two. If he purchased a two-dollar pair of shoes, he sold about two bushels of wheat to pay for them; now he must sell four bushels of wheat. If a farmer living in Coweta county comes to Atlanta to spend a week, it would be necessary for him now to sell double the product of his labor to meet his expenses as it would have been under the old system of finances. In domestic necessities there has been practically no change in the cost of 95 per cent, while in the matter of taxes and payments for hotel bills, railroad rates, tuition and other such expenses, there has been no change at all. Thus it will be seen that the argument that $25 under the gold standard is the equivalent of $50 under the double standard, will not hold. The man who is fool enough to be misled and deceived by it does not deserve sympathy.

The Congressional Contest.

The conspiracy to defeat democratic financial legislation, to which Dr. Felton is constantly referring, has been exposed and denounced by every genuine democratic newspaper in the country, and we are surprised to see so sensible a man using the fact as an argument to show why Judge Maddox, the democratic nominee for congress in the seventh district, should be defeated.

Judge Maddox was a member of congress when the coalition between eastern democrats and republicans was in active working order, but he is no more responsible for the success of its schemes than Dr. Felton is. He lifted his voice igainst and voted against it to the end. and his votes are of record. On every proposition he voted in behalf of the interests of the people. He voted in favor of the free coinage of silver and against the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman oct. What more could Dr. Felton have done, either as a democrat or as a populist? As a democrat he might have had some influence in congress and with the administration, but, as a populist, he would have had no influence whatever. That proposition is as true of the future as it is of the past. There is no conceivable situation or emergency in which Dr. Felton, as a populist, would have as much influence with congress or with the administration as Judge Maddox, the democrat. Judge Maddox has been as true a friend of silver as Dr. Felton declares himself to be. He has been thoroughly in line with the people of his district in their demands for financial relief and reform. He has represented their Interests with courage, fidelity and energy, and he has successfully resisted all the pressure brought to bear on southern congressmen to induce them to give their influence to maintaining the scheme of financial robbery and oppression fastened on the people by John Sherman and the republican conspirators in 1873.

Judge Maddox has served the people of the district faithfully. In season and out of senson he has worked in their behalf. He has stood for true democracy. His record speaks for itself. No southern congressman has made a better one, and no southern congressman has stood more firmly or more consistently for genuine democratic principles, as the people understand them. Every argument that Dr. Felton makes against the goldbug conspirators of the east and the goldbug bushwhackers of the south-every argument he makes in behalf of the free and unlimited coinage of silver-is an argument in behalf of the re-election of John W. Maddox, who stood in congress, and who stands now, as the nominee of his party, as the champion of an honest interpretation of the democratic platform and as the defender of genuine democratic principles ..

Those who vote against Judge Maddox in the seventh district fly in the face of their own best interests. No one doubts the honesty or the ability of Dr. Felton, but as a populist member of congress neither his ability nor his honesty would be of any avail. He would have no influence with the democrats nor with the administration. On the other hand, Judge Maddox is just as honest and just as able as Dr. Felton; is as sincerely devoted to the interests of the people. As a democrat, representing the democratic poli-cy, unmixed with any goldbug flavor, he would have more influence in congress and be more useful to the people of his district and state than any populist congressman could be.

Every man of intelligence who extends his vision beyond the boundaries of his county and his district cannot fail to perceive that underneath the surface of current politics a movement at once portentious and pernicious is going on which has for its purpose the destruction of political unity and harmony in the south. The solid south, standing for the repeal of financial legislation in the interests of the money power of the east-standing for a return to honest money and honest methods-is a constant threat to the security of the shylocks. They will never be able to enjoy their spoils in peace and comfort as long as the solid south stands for the restoration of silver to its old place as the unit and measure of value.

Consequently, in order to fix and establish the results that republicanism, acting in behalf of the money power of this country and Europe, the political south must be divided-its solidity must be destroyed.

To this scheme the populists and their leaders are unwittingly contributing. There are other factors engaged in promoting it, but we need not refer to these now. The fact which we desire to emphasize is that any division among the democratic voters of the south, of Georgia, of any congressional district, of any county, is, to the extent of its importance, an aid to the scheme by which the money sharks hope to fix and establish in our system their scheme of currency contractiontheir scheme of robbery and oppression. Let the people of the seventh district stand by their congressman as earnestly as he has stood by their interests-as ardently as he has endeavored to promote the reforms they have at

A Meritorious Meeting.

A meeting has been called by President W. H. Black, of the Young Men's Democratic League of Atlanta, for tonight, for the purpose of sending a word of cheer to our democratic brethren in New York, who are now in the midst of one of the liveliest campaigns which has taken place in the state for a good many years. The democratic party of the whole country is interested in the result in New York, and, acting on this premise. President Black called tonight's meeting, in order that a fitting expression of the sentiment of the democrats of Atlanta might be sent to New York, by way of encouragement. The idea is a good one and democratic organizations in all parts of the country, should do likewise. Every effort should be made to induce the conflicting elements in New York to bury their differences and unite for the success of

It is hoped that tonight's meeting, which is to take place in the basement of the courthouse, will be largely attended and that a proper word of sympathy and encouragement will be sent as a message of cheer from Atlanta democrats to their battling brothers in New York.

Curious and Suspicious.

We have frequently referred to the curious, not to say suspicious, fact that the small element in Georgia which professes to be in favor of "true bimetallism"-that is to say, "international bimetallism"-endeavors to strengthen its sition by adopting every invented by the advocates of the single gold standard. If the arguments that are put forth by (for instance) The Macon Telegraph, have any substantial basis in fact or reason, then there is no necessity for bimetallism of any kind.

We mention The Telegraph because its editor is far and away the ablest and most intelligent of those in Georgia who desire to risk the prosperity of this people on the remote contingency of England's agreement to remonetize sil-

If these are "true bimetallists," why do they empoly goldbug arguments? Why do they insist that gold has not risin in value and thus caused the general fall in prices that has involved the people of this country in disaster? Why do they insist that there is a sufficient supply of gold to serve the world's demand for money of final payment? Why do they declare that overproduction and the invention of machinery have caused the prices of products of labor to fall?

If these arguments are true, it mus accessarily follow that there is no need for "international" or any other kind of bimetallism. Why, then, do these "true bimetallists" advocate bimetal lism? Do they hope to deceive the people? Do they hope, by filling the minds of their readers with the absurd arguments of the gold monometallists, to lead them away from the truth?

If so, the "true bimetallists" in the south ought to close the mouths of such American bimetallists as President Andrews, and Professor Walker. They ought, especially, to turn their at tention to The New York Financial Chronicle, which is unquestionably the ablest financial journal in this country. The Financial Chronicle, in a recent issue, had a long editorial article on the subject of bimetallism, in which it says that those who insist on bimetallism have made out a case that has not been successfully as sailed. We have not time just now to give a synopsis of the statements made by The Chronicle, which has heretofore been an apologist for the single gold standard. Another day will do for that. Meanwhile, we desire to call the attention of the "true bimetallists" in Georgia that they are masquerading in a very thin disguise when they endeavor to promote international bimetallism by employing goldbug arguments. If property has lost none of its value-if land is worth as much as it was twenty or ten years ago-if low prices are the result of improved methods of production—then there is no need for bimetallism and no need for an expansion of our stock of standard money. If these arguments are true, everything is lovely and the goose honks high, and John Sherman ought to be thanked for destroying more than one-half of our oney of final redemption.

Some time during 1884 Colonel A. W. Toombs, of Earlington, Ky., obtained pos-session of an old pipe, which was curious and attractive. It was in the possession of a negro tramp, who came to that town, a negro tramp, who came to that town, and Colonel Toombs purchased it from him for a mere trifle. The pip2 was a handcarved affair with a long stem, around which was a silver band containing the following inscription: "Found on the body of an officer in the Thomas corps, on the battlefield of Chickamauga, Sunday, September 12, 1864, by Lieutenant Will Fra Third confederate infantry, Po brigade, Cleburne's division." Some time afterward Colonel Toombs, being anxious to learn something more concerning the history of the pipe, inserted a card in The Courier-Journal containing a description of it and asking for information. He was d by receiving a letter from Lieutenant Frazer, of St. Louis, whose name was mentioned in the inscription on the pipe. The letter contained an account of how the pipe came into his possession, and how the pipe came into the story is an interesting one. In the story is an interesting one. In one. In his ommunication Lieutenant Frazer says:
"In that terrible struggle on Sunday at Chickamauga my brigade (Polk's, burne's division), in making the final charge about sunset, carried the works in its front, which were held-if I mistake notby Beard's division of regulars. As stepped over the breastworks a federal ficer lyng near a battery, apparently in the last agonies of death, motioned to me I knelt beside him, raised his head and gave him a drink of water from my can-He feebly pointed to his breast pocket, from which I saw the stem of a pipe protruding, and taking it out he pressed it into my hands, and with his eyes expressed his desire for me to keep it. He was speechless. How I managed to keep the pipe through the mutations of war that followed that bloody Sunday I hardly know, but at the close, when settled down in New Orleans, I found that the pipe had stuck to me. In 1869 I presed the pipe to a friend of mine in Orleans, and he had it encircled with the silver band and engraved. How it got out party from whom you obtained it is, of course, a matter of conjecture, and I regret its career should have been so inglo-

On the land of a farmer five miles east of Crab Orchard, Ky., near the village of Gum Sulphur, is a well which is a great wonder to those who have visited it. It is known as the "burning well," a name appropriately given, for its waters, though clear, limpid and drinkable, are as inflammable at naphtha. This will is about a stratum of slate rock. It contains a wooden pump stock and the water, as it comes cold and sparkling from the depths of the well, has no odor about it. It has a mineral taste and is exceedingly pleasant to drink. Yet a dipper full of it coming contact with a flame will take fire, b ing up like gunpowder. The well's discovery, if the natives tell a true story, was remarkable. A party of excursionists from the springs went out in that section in quest of ferns, fossils and the like. On their return they found the well and stopped to get a drink. An old lady living near by brought a bucket and filled it with the refreshing fluid for the thirsty ramblers. After they had drank she poured the remainder on the ground near the well. Just at this instant a young man of the lighted a cigarette and threw the match heedlessly to the ground. In chanced fall into the poured out water, which took fire and flashed up, amazing and frightening the whole party. At the sugestion of one of the onlookers more water was drawn, and to the wonder of all it took fire as readily as an explosive, scorch ing the face and eyebrows of the rash experimenter who held the match. The old lady's family had for years been using walady's family had for years been using water out of the well, perfectly ignorant of

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Help the Wayward Boys. Editor Constitution—I see an article it your valuable paper favoring the building of a home for the incorrigible, the wayward and the homeless youths of the state of Georgia. If you will allow me to expres myself through the columns of your paper as a humble citizen of the state, that the legislature could scarcely do anything that would result in a more lasting benefit to the state, nothing that she would be more proud of in the future than to make the necessary appropriation to build a boys' reformatory or industrial school. I had a few years ago the pleasure of visiting or three different occasions the Boys' Industria school of Ohio while under the control of Mr. J. C. Hite, and I found in it an in stitution that the state of Ohio might well feel proud of, and I could name some gentlemen who graduated from that in-stitution who are a credit to themselves and any community in which they reside. lalso had the pleasure of visiting the In dustrial school of Indiana at Plainfield also the lunatic, deaf and dumb and the also the lunatic, deaf and dumb and the female reformatory or prison of Indiana, with Mr. J. C. Hite, whom I think is one of the kindest and most sympathetic reformatory gentlemen that it has ever been my good fortune to meet. And if Georgia could meet with the good fortune of building such a refuge and have such a man at the head of it the state would never have occasion to regret it. With respect, Z. D. DILDINE, Milford, Baker county, Georgia.

Milford, Baker county, Georgia.

For Senator Walsh. Editor Constitution-A number of dis-tinguished sons of Georgia are presented as candidates for the highest office in the gift of her people. Of all of these we think it may be said that they are duly and truly prepared, worthy and well qual-ified. There is not one of them who has not done the state loyal service in the past, and in so doing offered the very best assurances for the faithful performance of duty in the more exalted position of sens tor. But, while we think this honor would tor. But, while we think this honor would be most faithfully bestowed on any one of the aspirants, we regard it as especially in accordance with the fitness of things that he who has so ably filled the unexpired term of the lamented Colquitt should be selected for the next full term. When Governor Northen made this appointment there was an almost unbroken voice of approval from all parts of the state. It was recognized as a merited reward for years of faithful and devoted labor for his party and for his state. This argument in his favor, which was strong then, has been rendered greatly stronger by his having proven most signally a capacity which was before only suspected. Every Georgia democrat does, feel proud of the brilliant record made by Senator Walsh during the last six months. Actuated by a patriotism both broad and sincere, he has sought to advance the best interest not only of his own state and section, but of the whole country. In discussing the pending issues of the day, he evinces profound knowledge of the principle of our government and of the great laws of trade and finance. His utterances upon these themes have not been those of one had but a smattering of information. They stand approved, on the contrary, as the most faithfully bestowed on any on usions of a clearly and deeply this tatesman. We need men of this type national council, and when such has been found he should not be from mere captiousness. A VOICE FROM BURKE.

WALSH AT MADISON.

Campaigning in Georgia at this time po-litically, is uphili. The beautiful, bright weather has caused cotton to open freely and affords exceptional opportunities for picking. This necessarily keeps many peo-ple at home on their farms, for they, whether white or black, understand the value of such atmospheric conditions and dare not allow them to escape, even to attend the meetings of their candidates and speakers. Here and there this condition is varied as to numbers, but only in degree. The discussions this year are also largely without the old-time trimmings—the brass band and barbecues. Music and free lunch have traditional attractions. Their non-ex istence, no doubt, deters the crowd, and keeps them at home. Besides this, the peo-ple are indubitably distressed by falling prices of their chief staple—their m crop. You hardly see a happy face, money times. All is anxiety. The merchant, the lawyer, the doctor-all who largely depend on the prosperity of the planter—are suffer-ing with him. Never before, in our experience, have we seen so much apar and all from one cause—the apprehens much apathy, that cotton will fail in price below 5 cents and a desperate determination to be rid of the legislation that has presumably attempted to fasten this slavery of debt and impoverishment upon the producing masses. Before a select, representative and most intelligent audience, at the enterprising and noted town of Madison, Senator Waish ap-peared and delivered a very elaborate and profound address. His speech was, in effect, wholly extemporaneous, although it involved delicate analysis, formidable statistics and a wealth of illustration. His digified, but kindly presence, was greatly his favor. He was the senator and the man of affairs, but behind all these official or masculine trappings, the big brain g'owed the big heart pulsated and he won the personal affections of his listeners here as everywhere, as well as captured their reason by fair, square, honest, masterful argu mentation. It is after a man has spoken and you get among the crowd that the true index of feeling is made manifest. At Madison, for example, when Senator Walsh was on the way to Atlanta, the writer of this rapid report was seated in the vestibule of the courthouse and the current of talk ran about thus: One would say: "Judge Baldwin, in his address, told the truth. Walsh win, in his address, told the truth. Walsh has done more for Georgia in a few months at Washington than any man we ever had there." Another would chime in, "You are there." Another would chime in, right. I may not exactly agree with all of his statements, and may need more light on some of his minor positions, but he is right on all essential points, true to democratic, fundamental principles, and he is really and truly in sympathy with the plain people. He will represent and never betray us." Still another would say: "Every speech he made in congress was to forward the interests of our state, to help her in every way, and that is the kind of man we want. worker as well as a speaker. Walsh is a business man as well as an orator." The man of the world who travels everywhere would exclaim "I saw him daily in Washington on the senate floor. No new senator ever so quickly went to the front, gained such cordial appreciation and became so popular personally on both sides of the sen-ate chamber. That is the kind of man who can get almost anything done for his people diplomatically." One of the brainiest young lawyers stepped up and said: "That was the best speech that I have heard in this town for many a year. It was a states manlike address; none of your story-telling, superficial demagogical harangues, but a profound, lucid and philosophical, as as entertaining, discourse, worthy of the golden age of Georgia." on some points, are not in accord with the senator, spoke admiringly and affectionately of him, and declared that, though they had another preference his election would fill them with joy, for he had heart as well as intellect, and while true to every duty and every interest, his sympathies were warm est in direction of the masses who suffer from the injustice of unfriendly legislation -the remorseless gold-standard the prices of commodities have fallen dis astrously, as the silver men in the extra-ordinary session of last year predicted, why Shylock rubs his hands in glee. To the redress of this wrong Senator Walsh is pledged. He does not have any "ifs" and "buts" on the subject, but stands where the genuine democracy does, for free and unlimited colnage without shift, evasion or condition at the constitutional ratio of 1 to 1. He is not standing, hat in hand, ob-sequiously asking John Bull's permission to regulate the financial system of the United States, but demanding, as the con-stitutional Thurman democrats of Ohio are demanding—that the yoke of the combined money powers of Europe and America shall be taken from the necks of our people, it they shall be "re regenerated, disenthralled!" and that deemed, r by their own act, and without permission of any other nation, especially that ration which, as the world's creditor, has the large est stake in the appreciation of gold by law, and the consequential dicline in agri-cultural productions, whereby poverty leads to inevitable serfdom It is not necessary for your correspon to circumstantially detail the arguments of the senator, on the subject of the tariff, the income tax, the responsibility for hard times, the money question, etc. This has been done by competent hands, and nobody can say that the senator has not come out into the open and revealed, without possi-bility of mistake, the thoughts that are in him. As an example of the charity of his argument, we heard a prominent young lawyer say: "I did not think any man could convert me to the income tax, but Walsh has done it." On other themes of importance he is equally explicit, cogent and lecisive. He has no concealments, subterfuges or disguises. Brainy, expert, industrious, sober, sympathetic, faithful to all trusts, devoted to state and country, intrepid, courteous, friend-winning, eloquent reliable, self-sacrificing, with all the quali ties of head and heart to illustrate Georgia and serve her people's best interests, such is Patrick Walsh. What commonwealth of this union, having such a citizen already in public life, at Washington, would not keep him there with a unanimity of purpose and becoming pride as well as security? We know not what the future may bring forth in this respect, but we do know that if Patrick Walsh be officially announced as his own successor, for six years, after the 4th of March next, a storm of cordial congrat-ulations will turst forth, not only in this commonwealth, and not only in the south, but over the whole union, and we venture to add that, in our opinion, his election would do more to reunite the hostile facwould do more to retaine the hostile fac-tions of our state than any other event within our knowledge. Because of these facts, beyond any individual preference of local circumstance, The Herald has cham-ploned and will continue to champion the election of Hon. Patrick Walsh for the short election of Hon. Patrick Walsh for the short and long terms of United States senator from Georgia. We would respectfully and finally suggest to members of the general assembly that when the state has such a senator she had better be wise and keep him. Such an action would entail no re-grets, but, on the contrary, it would give assurance of future prosperity such as Georgia has not had for a generation at least.

SILVER IN GEORGIA. Albany Herald: The same apologists for the administration who "hoped" and "felt sure" and were pleased to state on the "best of authority," when the unconditional ing, that President Cleveland would something for silver," and who, later on, assumed an injured air whenever fear was expressed that he would not sign the silver seigniorage bfil, are now rushing into print with assurances that he will give his sup-port to Hill and the democratic ticket in New York. The Herald takes no stock in New York. The Herald takes no stock in these assurances. Mr. Cleveland is in position to speak for himself, and has been urged by the democratic leaders in New York and by the democratic press of the entire country to do so. He has had ample time to show his hand in the important crisis to which the democratic party has been brought by the situation in New York, and if he really intends to be loyal to the party in this crisis he ought to remove all doubt about it by speaking for himself. The country is anxiously waiting for him to do so.

THE STATE BANK QUESTION.

Butler Herald: We think there is no question but that the people of our state would be greatly benefited by a local currency issued by our banks, under proter restrictions of course. We believe that the supreme court as now constituted would decide the law taxing such issue to be unconstitutional. If the several banks in this state would agree to bear their pro rata of the expense of a suit testing the question they would render the state a great service, and in the event such decision was favorable to them they would at the same time greatly promote their own interest. We hope such a case will be made. We have said, and repeat, that a local currency issued by our state banks would promote the interest of the south far more than any vision of the tariff. Such an issue would necessarily bring the free coinage of silver and break the monopoly of the eastern money power-and would bring to the south a prosperity equal to, if not greater, than it enjoyed from 1865 to 1870. By all means let us have a test case. Butler Herald: We think there is no ques-

Waynesboro Citizen: The best way to give a volume of currency which would be safe from the control of northern money centers would be a repeal of the tax on bank issues. Northern money changers would control the circulation of any nation al currency that was of value, no matter how much was in circulation. They have chown their ability to do so. What are mil-lions at the north? They are as easily hanlions at the north? They are as easily handled by the millionaires as a thousand is ordinarily in the hands of less financial ability and experience. The value of state money would be confined to state limits and could be found when wanted. It would not flow into the coffers of northern shylocks. There is no doubt of a sufficiency of the supply of currency to do the business of the country if it were in circulation as it should be. But dead is the money that is should be. But dead is the money that is doing the work, to be paradoxical.

It was a busy day, and a lively one, in legislative and political circles.

The chief interest during the early hours was centered in the conference of democratic members which were to decide the question of caucus or no caucus. Then when that was decided, as everybody believed it would be, in favor of the affirmative and of the proposition, the interest was focussed upon the caucuses which were to fix the organization of the senate and the house, and particularly upon the contest in the upper house over the secretaryship.

For it was over this office that the real contest of the day occurred. During the hour or more that the senators were in secret session, the halls outside their chamber presented an animated scene, for the crowd was there and the house lobbies were deserted. That it would be very close, everybody felt certain; and neither side to the controversy felt at all certain of victory. Hon. William Clifton, of McIntosh, and Hon. H. H. Cabaniss, of Fulton, were the Clifton was Mr. Charles S. Northen, of Fulton, while with Mr. Cabaniss were Hon. Charles P. Hansell, of Thomas, and Judge C. T. Wellborn, of Union.

On the first ballot, the vote stood 18 and 18-a tie. On the second ballot, one of the votes which had been cast for the Cabaniss ticket went over to Clifton, and when the news of the victory of the young "warhorse" reached the lobby-as it did almost immediately-there went up a mighty shout. Mr. Clifton's friends were decidedly jubilant. Of course, Mr. Cabaniss and his friends took the defeat good naturedly and philosophic-

It was a brilliant victory and one of which Mr. Clifton and Mr. Northen have every reason to feel proud. The combination which they beat was a very strong one, and to have won over it is certainly a great triumph. It is, too, a high tribute to the popularity of these two young rien. Both are well known throughout the entire state. Mr. Clifton served several times as member of the legislature from Chatham county and during his service made an excellent record. He is a great, big, wholesouled fellow, ever ready to work for a friend-and a man who has a host of them. While this is the first office under the state which he has held, Charley Northen is hardly less known and he, too, numbers his friends as legion. The same characteristics of strong friendship which his confrere possesses are Charley Northen's, and in the highest degree. With him it has always been, heretofore, simply the enthusiastic support of some friend's cause and this is the first time he has presented himself for anything like state preferment. His splendid service to the party as vice chairman of the executive committee which managed Governor Northen's campaign is remembered by everybody. The fact that the gentlemen they defeated were most capable and popular makes their victory all the more notable. A good pair to draw to-Clifton and Northen!

THEY MEET FOR CONFERENCE.

And Decide to Caucus on All Nomi-nations-Joukins Presides.

The chief interest during the day was in the conference which had been called to meet at the hall of the house of representatives at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. It was understood, of course, that the chief pur-pose for the conference was to decide upon whether the democrats in the senate and house should caucus. There was really no difference of opinion on this question, everybody agreeing that there should be a cau-cus to decide the democratic nominees for the offices, and the decision of the conference, which was to that effect, was, therefore, in no sense a surprise. It was half-past 2 o'clock before the conference was called to order. Hon. H. A. Jenkins, the representative of Putnam they expressed confidence that there could county, was called to the chair and in accepting the honor of presiding over the gathering, made a strong address, favoring unity of action among the democratic memunity of action among the democratic members of the general assembly of Georgia, the chosen representatives of the democratic of this democratic state.

Hon. J. J. Doolan, of Chatham county, was unanimously chosen secretary.

There was some discussion as to the property of proceedure, brought on by a er method of procedure, brought on by a coafflet of motions, and by a set of resolu-tions submitted by Mr. McMichael, of Muscogee. These resolutions provided that cau-cuses should be held and also provided rules, governing the caucus. They evidently represented the sentiments of the democratic members of the legislature, but Mr. Hodges, of Bibb, made the point of order that, as there had been no roll call perfected and there had been no organization of a caucus, it was out of order to provide rules for the procedure of that caucus. He showed that there were a great many people present who were not domecratic members of the legislature, and it would be manifestly improper to bring up anything of this kind as yet.

Mr. McMichael withdrew his resolution and then, on motion of Mr. Hodges, the secretary began the preparation of a roll of membership. While this was being done Mr. Fleming made a formal motion that a secret caucus of the democrats of the senate and house be held, and that all other persons present be requested to withdraw. This was adopted. Hon. M. T. Perkins, of Habersham, was chosen as doorkeeper and the work of clearing out the hall began.

Almost a Full Membership. After this had been completed the roll was called and it was found that one hundred and forty-six members were present. Then the real work of the conference began. This was conducted with closed doors and the details of the debate which followed were not given to the public. The result of it, however, was the adoption, by a unanimous vote, of a resolution providing that the democratic members caucus on all nominations—that each house hold a separate caucus on its organization and a joint caucus to be held on all offices which reguire election at the hands of the entire legislature. It was decided, also, that in these caucuses a majority of the democratic membership should be necessary to choice.

It was decided further that the senate and the house caucuses should meet at half. past 8 o'clock last night to perfect the or-A Full Majority Necessary.

The only point of issue seems to have been made on the number which should be necessary to choice. It was proposed by some of the members that a majority of the caucus only should be necessary. It was pointed out, however, that this might be a dangerous precedent. For sometime the matter was argued from the different stand-points, but finally the decision that a majority of the democratic members of the house in the house caucus should decide in the matter of nominations, and that in the joint caucus a majority of the democratic membership of the legislature should de-

The caucus was harmonious throughout, and was interesting in that it gave the and was interesting in that it gave the members an opportunity of making the acquaintance of each other and giving them an acquaintance into the personality of the men who would be their co-workers during what promises to be one of the most important sessions which the Georgia legislature has ever known.

For president Hon. W. H. Venable had no opposition, and the same compliment of unanimous election was paid Hon. C. H. Brand, who was chosen president pro tem. The contest for the secretaryship was close and exciting. The first ballot was a tie—18 to 18. On the next Senator Mc Millan, who had voted for Mr. Cabaniss, changed to Mr. Clifton and elected him.

For doorkeeper Major R. E. Wilson was unanimously elected. Hon. A. K. Ramsey, who was a member of the last house, will be with him.

There was quite a lively contest over the office of messenger, Flynn Hargett, of Harris, finally winning. His opponents were D. L. Paulk, W. R. Ware and W. T.

The only contest here was over the office of doorkeeper.
For speaker Hon. W. H. Fleming was unanimously chosen, as were Hon. Clarence Wilson, of Clay, as speaker pro tem.; Hon. Mark Hardin, as clerk, and Hon. James Smith, of Coffee, as messenger.

The candidates for doorkeeper were Moses

The last claims made by the friends of the candidates were as follows: Bacon 92, Turner, 63, Garrard 41, Walsh 21. But, as there are but 166 votes on joint ballot of the two houses and as this foots up 216, somebody is way out of allignment in their reckoning. "As a matter of fact," said one of the best posted politicians in the state last evening, "there are not less than fifty members of the two houses who are absolutely unpiedged and who really do not know yet for whom they will vote. Some of these men are counted by the managers and friends of all four of the candidates. Bacon undoubtedly has more votes pledged to shim than any of the other candidates and it may be that he will win it, but somebody is way off in their estimates." Around the headquarters of all the candidates there was much enthusiasm and great claims were made. Senator Walsh arrived from Augusta yesterday and epened headquarters in the corner parlors on the first floor of the Kimball. With him came Mr. Boykin Wright, Judge W. F. Eve, Captain P. J. O'Conner, Mr. William Keener, Ma-jor Joseph Ganahl and the Augusta delega-tion, besides many others. Senator Walsh and his friends made no great claims, but

SUCCESS PILED ON SUCCESS

WISE OLD SAYING-"One swallow doesn't make a summer" --- and we may add, one success doesn't make a business. It's the every-day enterprise that wins. That mother who came into our store last season and bought a $5 Suit that she had always paid $6.50 for before, knows we're progressive, when she comes in this season and pays $3.50 instead of $5. The manufacturing our own make does it. The buying cloth for spot cash does it. The ambition to gather a great business at small profit to ourselves does it. It's so all through the Boys' Clothing, $5, $6.50, $8.50. Everywhere great value, great style, tailor-make fitting, or better.

Why, one cloth-maker taking note how keen we were for good things, brought us a big lot of his products that we found out the goodness of last season, and sold Men's Suits of it for $18. Very nice quality, safe against wearing glossy, neat, nobby weave.

What would we give for the lot of cloth? He accepts our offer, and today [best part of a thousand suits to sell] we have a marvelous $12 Business Suit. Never anything approaching it for $12. Most anywhere you'd pay

The Handsome Young Congressman Talks About the Next Congress. Congressman Allan C. Durborow, Jr., of Chicago, is at the Aragon. He came yesterday, and will spend several days in Gate City of the South, this being his first trip to this region of the country. Mr. Louis M. Hamberger is with Con-gressman Durborow and they will spend today looking over the city and visiting the exposition grounds. Mr. Hamberger was mer general for Russia at the California midwinter exposition, and was prominently connected with the Chicago fair when it was in progress. Congressman Durborow was the man who worked through congress the bill for the appropria-tion of money for the help of the world's

They are both deeply interested in the Atlanta exposition, and will visit the grounds today and pay a visit to President Charley Collier at headquarters.

When seen by a Constitution reporter last night Congressman Duborow talked pleasantly and interestingly about the coming congress.

"I was fearful, three weeks ago," said he, "that the democrats would suffer in the approaching elections. Somehow my fears have been removed within the past two weeks, for I think there has been a decided change. Out west, in my section, some splendid work has been done by the democrats.

"The speeches that Vice President Stephenson has been making have been of incalculable benefit to the party. been going about in the west setting forth the claims of democracy and the earnest-ness of his methods has been instrumental in getting up a great deal of good feeling for the party in that section. I am forced that democracy will show up all right in the next congress, and I believe that the coming election will not mark disaster for the party."

He was asked about the movement of the populists in the west "Oh well, it cannot be denied," he replied, "that the populists have been working a fairly successful campaign out in that section. They will not succeed to any very great degree, however, and the democrats will be on top when the shuffle

'That's all talk," said he, "That will never be. The populists will never show up that strong. One thing is certain, however, they are growing pretty strong in city of Chicago. Ever since the recent lahave been gaining strength, and now they have with them some very bright and brainy men in Chicago. They are making a strong pull and will have a great deal stronger following in the coming election than they had in the last. But, I am inlined to believe that the democratic party will come out all right in my region of the

in Good Money. Athens. Ga., October 23.-(Special.)-A negro boy named Parker Thomas was arrested this morning by Deputy Marshal A. G. Elder and Patrolman Henry Hill on the charge of passing counterfeit money.

There developed in evidence at the committal trial before Commissioner Kinnebrew that the negro hal sold hay to Mr. George Booth and had been paid in silver. He afterwards came back to Mr. Booth and claimed that one of the dollars paid him was counterfeit. Mr. Booth, knowing that he had passed no counterfeit on the negro, refused to give him another dollar. The same negro sold hay to Dr. W. P. Betts and afterwards came back with the same story. Dr. Betts took the counterfelt from the negro and gave him a good dollar, although he firmly believed it was a

It also developed that the negro had gone to some other parties with the same story, and it is surmised by the officers that he made a regular business of it. When the matter leaked out the officers got on the track of Thomas and soon had him in

FROM BISHOP NELSON.

Says He Abhors the A. P. A., but Is Contending for Justice. Editor Constitution-Recurring to my letter to The Constitution of recent date, which was in no sense a tilt with any one else, but a plain statement of facts, for which I can produce testimony that will stand in law, I do not regret that it was furnished to another for reply. Any intelligent person reading my remarks would be abundantly satisfied of my abhorrence of the ways and methods of the A. P. A., with which I have no sympathy whatever.

But it is possible, I suppose, to study the causes of a movement without in any sense favoring it. The ethics and the economics of all prominent events are no less important and to some of us more interesting that the political bearing. I distinct esting that the political bearing. I distinctly avoided the last aspect of the question and confined myself to the want of rectitude and wisdom, which certainly are among the causes underlying this more reprehensible expression of discontent. reprehensible expression of discontent.
Your many scholarly and fair-minded readers will appreciate the truth of this all the more that my presentation of facts and figures was not in the least affected by the letter which followed mine in the tution referred to: an no one need have any apprehension that they will be successfully denied. The Con-gressional Record and the books of the Catholic bureau of Indian missions of the past ten years would have to be altered enable any one to deny what I wrote the subject of national appropriations. My contention is a very sensible one-that for ten years the national government, contrary alike to sound morals and to the principles upon which this republic is founded, has subsidized heavily (much over three million dollars) the Roman Catholic church. That this is an infamous outrage, to stop which is the bounden duty of every true American citizen, and that the Roman Catholic church could in no way bring such credit upon herself as by refusing, a many other Christian denominations done, all such grants, as opposed to the spirit and letter of our constitution, and indisputably fruitful of those most de-plorable results—religious parties, riots or war. It will be but a repetition of history, from which may Providence defend us. Into the political issues I do not purpose to enter, save to say what every one knows, that the use of money in politics is to secure votes and that the certainty of losing votes is precisely that which con-inues the robbery.

The relation of my subject to Georgia politics I have not ventured to describe or even outline, but the same form of cor-ruption on a smaller scale is true even here, where many Roman Catholic schools are sustained out of public moneys. Let him deny who will. I have better things to occupy my time than politics, but as an American citizen who, in the exercise of his legitimate duties has taken up his residence in Georgia, I propose to place myself, and to influence all whom I can to do likewise, on the side of justice, honor and truth, without attempting or desiring to hamper the liberty of any man or any body of men, by whatever name they may be called, so long as that liberty is not resolved into license to the damage of others who also have rights. Nor, as of others who also have rights. Nor, as long as open court is afforded in your valued columns, do I propose to be gagged by a few trivial personalities which have no bearing whatever upon the real issues, and are introduced for the obvious purpose of evading the real point of the matter before we October 20, 1894 C. WIMBISH'S REPORT

Makes an Exhaustive Statement of the State's Railroad Claims.

IT WILL GO TO THE LEGISLATURE

Tells of the Rights of the State and How Its Property Has Been Encroached Upon-The Report in Full.

ports that are to be submitted to the pres-ent legislature is that of Hon. W. A. Wimbish, special attorney of the state for the Western and Atlantic railroad.

The report has already been made to the governor and is now in the hands of the printer. It will be out in pamphlet form

It is certainly gratifying to the observ-er of this report to see what excellent work has been done on behalf of the state in the way of getting back land that belonged to the state but which had been trespassed upon by corporations and individuals all along the route of the state road for twenty and thirty years.

The report almost amounts to a sensa

Much has already been said about the recovery of land that was originally the property of the state, being part of the right of way of the Western and Atlantic. Mr. Wimbish has gone thoroughly over the work and shows many instances where a settlement has been accomplished by the trespasser paying for the land and paying interest on the price for the number of years he held the property.

The report makes most interesting reading. It certainly shows that the state has profited by appointing a special attorney to keep track of the rightful ownership of these properties.

Among other things the report gives the

Among other things the report gives the following:

"I have been directed by your excellency to investigate and report concerning the occupation of the union depat by the various railroads using it, and their respective interests in the building. This involves a consideration of the character of the interest, if any, which the several railroad companies have in the building by virtue of having contributed to its erection.

"I find no evidence of any agreement between the parties touching the matter. The proportion paid by each for construction might indicate their respective rights with reference to the enjoyment of the use, but hardly reflects any further light on the subject. The nature of this use, whether an easement or a license, is a question of law, to be determined by reference to the circumstances of the transaction. An easement, unless acquired by prescription, lies only in grant, always imples an interest in the realty (servient estate), and is irrevocable. A license may be created by parol, carries with it no interest in the realty and is ordinarlly revocable. The ground upon which the depot stands was unquestionably the property of the state. It is not to be presumed, in the absence of clear legislative expression, that the state by permitting this use of its property intended to part with any right or title in the land itself. No deed conveying any right to either of those companies was ever made, nor does there exist any other writing upon which an equitable claim could be based. No easement could have been acquired by prescription, since our supreme court has in several cases held that prescription does not run against the state as affecting the property of the Western and Auantic railroad. For these reasons, it is clear to my mind that no easement exists in favor of these railroad companies, or any of them.

"My construction is that these companies have state. While a license is ordinarily revocable at law, yet when executed or what acquired upon a valuable consideration, the right can be exerc part of the licensees to pass over the right of way of the state to and from the depot, if necessary to the enjoyment of the use of the building.

"That portion of Wall street lying between Peachtrea axi Pryor streets is upon the right of way of the Western and Atlantic railroad, while that portion between Pryor and Loyd streets is upon that part of the original state square reserved to the state in the settlement with the Mitchell heirs.

"The history of the acquisition of the state square, and the compromise affecting the same, had with the heirs of the original grantor, is fully and accurately discussed in Little's Report, page 7, etsequitur.

discussed in Little's Report, page 7, et sequitur.

"It has been shown that upon a plat of the property which is supposed to have been attached to the deed from the heirs of Mitchell to the state, the space now occupied by Wall street, between Pryor and Loyd, is marked "To be left open for street and railroad purposes."

"I concur in the opinion that upon a proper construction of the deed, this endorsement on the record plat would not suffice to create an easement in favor of the public as against the state. If this be the correct view, the state would have the right to close this portion of the street to the public whenever it might see fit to do so. As between private persons the acceptance of a deed to which there was attached a plat bearing such endorsement might operate as an estoppel, but this doctrine does not apply to the state.

"The original designation of the right

there was attached a plat bearing such endorsement might operate as an estopped, but this doctrine does not apply to the state. Original designation of the right of way finough land lot 77, from the union depot to Forsyth street, one hundred feet in width, is shown at pages 16-17 of Little's Report. The true boundaries of this right of way is confident with the foundation wall of the National botel, and passes along and upon the sidewalk next to and ten feet from the Kimball that the whole of Wall street is upon property belonging to the state.

"By deed dated April 21, 1816, Samuel Western Ratiroad on another side by the bond of the result of the state of Georgia, and on soften side by the Western and Atlant ratiroad, on another side by the lot conveyed to the state of Georgia, and on soften side by Mitchail streets.

"In 1855 the city of Atlanta purchased this property from the Macon and Western Earls and the city and the city of Atlanta purchased the property from the Macon and Western Barrs date October 25, 186-and describes the proporty in the same time the city has sold all of the same size of the same time the city has sold all of the same size of the sa which have been searched, disclose the selightest information concerning the matter.

"I have had several conferences with the counsel for the city, looking to an adjustment of this matter, and have twice appeared before the railroad committee, to whom it had been referred by the general council. The committee has manifested a desire to ascertain all the facts, as well as a disposition to seek a just and fair settlement. The matter is still under consideration by them with promise of an early report. I have suggested to them that possibly an adjustment might be reached upon substantially the same terms as those of the supposed agreement; that is, that the city all all the exclusive use of this triangle for railroad purposes be confirmed. If such agreement was made, then the right of the state to the exclusive use of this triangle for railroad purposes be confirmed. If such agreement was made, then the right of the state to the use of this triangle has already ripened into an easement by prescription, which could not be interfered with by the city. I am not sure but the use by the state has been such as to create a prescriptive title in fee in its favor.

"Should no settlement be had within a reasonable time, I shall recommend that appropriate steps be taken to assert and protect the rights of the state. I cannot but believe, however, that with a disposition on both sides to encourage an adjustment on fair and equitable terms, a mutually advantageous settlement will be reached.

"It becomes material to consider whether such rights as the Georgia Pacific may have acquired with respect to the use of this right of way. This depends upon the proper construction of certain statutes of this state, regulating the right of subrogation in such cases.

"By section 9 of the general act for the incorporation of railroads, approved December 17, 1892 it was in substance provided that the purchaser of any railroad at any foreclosure of judicial sale, shall exercise and enjoy the rights, privileges, grants, franchises, immunities and advantages in or by the deed of trust enumeried and conveyed, as fully and completely as the former company might or could have cone. The section then proceeds as follows: Such purchaser or purchasers, their associates, successors or assigns, may proceed to organize anew by filing a petition to the secretary of state, with a request therein to be substituted for the original petitioners and stockholders, with all their powers, rights, privileges, and duties and likelities under this act, when said new corporators may proceed anew by electing new directors as provided by this act, and may distribute and dispose of stocks, and may conduct their business generally as provided by this act; and such purchaser or purchasers and their associates shall thereupon be a corporation, with all the powers, privileges, and frunchises conferred by and subject to the provisions of this section."

This action of the act amends sections 1 and 2 of the act of February 22, 1876, referring to the sume subject, and which should be looked to in firriving at a true interpretation of the law. The last named act will be found codified as sections 1820 (v) and 1828 (w) of the code.

"These statutes seem to indicate the policy of the state to be that before the purchasers of a railroad shall be subrogated to the rights of the former company, each purchaser shall become a domestic corporation in the manner prescribed, and not otherwise.

"This sentant of the former company, each purchaser shall be over the state underlying these statutes. It serves to the jurisdiction of the courts of the state by becoming a domestic corporation.

"It is apparent that these questions are of extreme importance to the Southern Railway Company, involving as they do its right of entrance into the city of Atlanta for the trairs of its entire western system. With its extended mileage and great traffic, it should prove a powerful factor in adding to the wealth of the state. On the other hand, the interests of the state and the rights of the lessee company are to be carefully guarded. The gravity of the situation demands that it should be viewed from a liberal standpoint, in order that the rights and interests of all parties may be duly conserved. I have thought that this end could be better accomplished by private treaty than by resort to the courts, where the rights of the parties would be measured by the strict rules of law. I am hopeful that the result of the pending negotiations will justify this confidence.

The case of the state vs. the Central Land Company et al. a number of depositions have been taken, and the case otherwise prepared for trial at the fall term of court. This is a bill for injunction to restrain the defendant from building on a small, irregular strip of land, fronting on Market street, claimed by the state. The case involves the correct location of lines and boundaries.

Out Its Entire Stock.

Mr. R. A. Williams, proprietor of the Memphi Stove Company, 98 Whitehall street, has decided to close out his entire business. To that end he is now selling at private sale all goods at half price and during auction hours he is selling goods at whatever price they will bring. This fact should not be overlooked by the good house ladies of Atlanta. It has been a long time perhaps that such an opportunity has been offered them for buying ranges, stoves, household and kitchen utensils at as low a price as they can secure them from the Memphi. Stove Company. Every morning at 10 o'clock until the goods are sold he will offer them for sale at auction. During the remaining part of the day he will sell at private sale. Inasmuch as he absolutely guarantees to sell at private sale any goods that he has in his house for half price, and inasmuch as he sells at auction to the highest bidder, there is no reason why you cannot get a bargain at his place. Remember that now is the time and that this opportune time for buying stoves and all household goods at such extremely low rates lasts but a few days longer.

THE STOCK MARKET.

Affairs on the Stock Exchange Are Drifting from Bad to Worse.

New York, October 23 .- Affairs at the stock exchange are drifting from bad to worse so far as business is concerned, the total sales today having amounted to only 93,131 shares, against 124,212 shares yester-day. In today's total American Sugar figured far over a third, 31,600 shares changing hands. The stock advanced 11/2 to 87 at the start and then ran off to 861/4@863%. The early advance was ascribed to purchases by parties friendly to inside interests. Manhattan was in better demand and moved up 1¼ to 106¼. Covering of short contracts led to the recovery in the stock. Northern Pacific preferred was heavy, breaking 2 per cent to 161% on the failure of the receivers to place the $5,000,000 certificates authorized by the court. Bids for less than $2,000,000 were received, and the general belief now is that the reorganization committee will have to come to the front once more. It is intimated that the negotiations between the committee and the receivers will be reopened shortly. The Grangers were inclined to weakness, owing to a belief that the forthcoming statement of the St. Paul and Burlington and Quincy will be unfavorable. Long stock did not come out fast enough, however, to suit the bears, and a trader offered to bet a thousand dollars even that St. Paul would sell down a point before tomorrow afternoon. Reading was neglected, the an-nouncement from Philadelphia that Masterin-Chancery Crawford had filed a report approving the reorganization plan falling flat. In the inactive stocks Consolidated Gas declined 11/2 to 1181/4. American Tobacco rose 24 to 108; Cedar Falls and Minnesots 2 to 6, and Pullman Palace 14 to 1614. Panhandle preferred fell 2 to 47 on rumors that the dividend may be reduced or passed. Speculation closed dull. Net changes 140% per cent, outside of Northern Pacific preferred, which sold down 1% per cent. Rock Island gained %, Sugar and Distillers

Closing Stock Review.

New York, October 23.-Foreign and Do mestic News Company, by private wire to J. C. Knox, manager: The stock market was intensely dull in the closing hour and even the Industrials sagged from a lack of Sugar was lower on sales by commission houses, and room traders were disposed to play the stock for a turn on the short side. Chicago Gas reflected the oversold condi-tion of the stock and quickly rallied as soon as room shorts attempted to cover. All the Grangers were neglected and Niel brokers hammered St. Paul on an intima-tion that the September report will not be up to expectations.

Among low priced stocks Northern Facific preferred was still pressed for sale, but from the undertone to Pacific Mail was fairly well maintained.

Stevens & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

By Private Wire to J. C. Knox, Slanager.

New York, October 23.—New Orleans and Liverpool were the motive power. They supplied the steam which lifted prices 2@13 points after some depression early in the day, due to large receipts at the ports year terday, which, in fact, broke the record, but Liverpool and New Orleans bought heavily and so did local shorts. Some of the German houses were large buyers for both sides of the account. Some stop orders were caught on the way up. The southern markets were higher with a good spot business. New Orleans talks more bullishly, owing to the cheapness of the price, the nervousness of the shorts and some investment demand by wealthy operators. Some of the same sort were buying moderately here on every good recession, and are prepared to stand a siege. A bet was offered here today by a leading operator of $2,500 even that the crop would not reach 9,250,290. Liverpool did a good spot business, though a little less than recently. One thing that encouraged the bulls was the fact that receipts at New Orleans tomorrow were estimated at only 18,000 to 29,000, against 19,401 last year. New Orleans sond the rest of the spot markets were steady or firm. Prices here were raised 1-16. New Orleans sold 3,990 bales, Memphis 4,500 and Savannah and Augusta were up 1-36 and the rest of the spot markets were steady or firm. Prices here were raised 1-16. New Orleans sold 3,990 bales, Memphis 4,500 and Savannah 2,325. Liverpool closed 3@3½ points up and firm. Spot sales there, 12,000 bales at unchanged prices. Cotton has sold 5c for middling uplands at New York in the past and has sharply rallied therefrom. New Orleans davanced 13 points and lost about half of this. Port receipts, 72,531, against 26,627 last year and 60,655 in 1891. Exports from the ports today, 26,256. Houston received 30,672, against 21,677 last year and 60,655 in 1891. MONTHS.

Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

.ew York, October 23.—This was the most active and lively day that the cotton market has seen for a long time. Liverpool's response to our improvement of yesterday was at first disappointing and our opening was at a slight decline, the first trades in January being at 5.60. A further decline followed, January selling down to 5.58. Then heavy buying orders for New Orleans were received and the market became sirong. January advanced to 5.75, or 17 points from the lowest. The transactions were large. In the last hour realizing sales caused a recession of half a dozen points from the highest. The close was steady, with January at 5.8926.58. The bulls declare that yesterday's opening prices represented bottom and that henceforth, even though there should be no big advance, there cannot be any further serious decline. The bears, flushed with confidence from the enormous and continuous profits they have made, call the improvement a "mushroom advance" and insist that prices will go lower than ever, but they are not, by any means, confident, as they affect to be. Today has given new courage to the bulls, and though there may be lower prices we 'hink it likely that new buyers in abundance will make their appearance after every decline hereafter.

New York, October 23.—Summary of Hubbard, Price & Co.'s cotton letter: The advance in the market which began yesterday has continued today and prices are fully 20 points higher than those ruling at the lowest point yesterday morning. This improvement, both here and in Liverpool, is due to the fact that the southern shippers have found themselves short of cotton, and the strength of the market yesterday prevented them from obtaining the cotton which they wished in the south and naturally they sent orders to this market 'to cover their previous, sales, with the result of the market advancing rapidly and little cotton appears to be for sale at the moment. Under the weight of the receivts at the ports and interior towns, which were larger than expected, the market closes barely steady at 6 points under the best prices of the day, though 5 to 6 points better than yesterday. If the pressure to sell on the part of southern planters is checked, we have probably seen the low point, but on the other hand, if this pressure is renewed and no accident occurs to the crop, the advance will be lost. than to local purchases. Some of the German houses bought freely, however, and not a few of the shorts became nervous when it was found that the estimate of the receipts at New Orleans tomorrow was comparatively small.

The Dry Goods Market.

New York, October 23.—No general request was apparent for any description of seasonable stuffs. On the part of the latest arrivals there was a pertinent inquiry for colored cottons that was followed by good purchases for near and later delivery. Orders for spring silks, such as printed indias and figured are coming in very well, as they are for printed cottons which are being asked for in fuller quantities. Printing cloths are in demand at 2%c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Chicago, October 23.—Duliness was supreme in all the speculative markets on the board of trade today. A few minutes of moderate activity marked the close, but the trade at the time was mainly due to a desire on the part of shorts to cover their outstanding contracts, urged possibly by some sales of cash corn, which influenced the other grains, more especially the future deliveries. In wheat the trade was light and of little consequence, the crowd holding off all the morning in anticipation of the Bradstreet report on the world's visible supply, but failing to exert themselves even after it became public. December wheat opened firm, 52% to 52%@%c, sold between 52½@65%; closing with the outside, a shade over yesterday. Cash wheat was easier, sales averaging %c lower.

ne energy was imparted to corn dur-Some energy was imparted to corn during the closing quarter of an hour by a reported sale of 250,000 bushels for shipment, some of it said to be for direct export. Previous to that the business dragged and prices merely, held steady at a trifling loss made at the opening. May corn opened at 49%c, sold between 49%c and 50%c, closing at 50%c, a fraction higher than yesterday. Cash corn was ¼c lower during the active trading hours, the nominal close being strong.

during the active trading hours, the nominal close being strong.

Oats mirrored the inactive and easy tone of the other markets, closing firm like them, but with no change from yesterday in prices. The range was very low and very little interest was taken in the trade. Cash oats were 1/40/20 lower, white grades showing the greatest weakness.

Provisions—The offerings of product were not large, but they were greater than the trade could conveniently absorb and there was a moderate decline. The hog market, which opened firm, afterwards became weak, and the latter feeling made itself apparent in provisions. The ruling weakness parent in provisions. The ruling weakness in grain was also reflected. At the close January pork was 7½c lower than yesterday, and January lard and ribs each 5c lower.

By Private Wire to J. C. Knox, Manager.
Chicago, October 23.—Wheat opened with a slight loss from yesterday's close on heavy carlots in the northwest—1,680 cars—and liberal receipts here. The market has been an extremely dull one all day on the waiting attitude assumed by the traders, while the talk of wee'vis acted as a wet blanket. New York reports an active demand for wheat from foreigners who evidently want wheat, as 1,250,000 bushels has been taken since last Friday, while calles are ½e'did up at Liverpool in spite of the fractional decline here. About the only transaction of interest this morning was the unloading of a long line taken on yesterday by a weak holder. The tone of the market regardless of lack of speculation continues firm, and we see nothing in sight to cause any material decline, while the easy feeling yesterday doubtless out down long lines and increased short sales. Shipments from the Baltic and sundry ports were 4,000,000 bushels, American 3,192,000 bushels, showing a decrease in the weekly European supplies of 1,129,000 from last week. Total clearances, 366,000 bushels of wheat and flour. Bradstreet's report, which came about noon, makes the available stocks east and west of the Rockies increase about 4,500,000 bushels, and the world's visible increase about 5,250,000. In spite of these adverse statements the market firmed up and continued strong to the close, which was at the high point for the day.

Corn opened tame ½@%c lower. Shorts Lamson Bro's & Co.'s Grain Lefter.

ket firmed up and continued strong to the close, which was at the high point for the day.

Corn opened tame 1/40% lower. Shorts hammered the market, but took care not to offer much, and with the demand for cash corn, prices quickly recovered the early loss. New York took 198.000 bushels here for export, while Bradstreet's shows a decrease of 36.000 bushels. The market has been very dull but firm the latter half of the day, closing at near the high point. Receipts today were 80 cars over the estimate, but 75 cars are expected tomorrow.

Oats have been quiet and steady all day, sympathizing with wheat and corn. Nothing of consequence has transpired in the pit. May opened 32/4c, eased off 4c, firmed up and closed at 32%, asked—the high point of the day. Bradstreet's makes oats increase 720,000.

Provisions have ruled featureless the entire season, prices remaining nominal. Hogs at the yards were 3,000 under expectations.

Some of the prettiest frocks to be seen here are worn before the footlights. The chief attraction of the Gayety girls lies in their pretty toliets. The play is well costumed throughout and the settings are charming. One of the loveliest frocks worn is a blue silk made in Louis Quinze style. The full skirt has two stiff, enormous bows of black satin placed up and down on either side a little at the back. The bodice has a short cutaway coat effect with a blg jacket of lace and a deep, folded belt of black satin, which shows at the back. The frock in which Cissie Fitzgerald executes her famous dance is of apple-green liberty silk made enormously full with no crinoline in the full, drooping sleeves and a lot of fluffy lace and knots of flowers. She is a pretty young creature of the apple-blossom type. The only thing to mar the style and fresh, lovely looks of most of these young English women is the enormous and unsightly "buns" or knots of hair which they affect. The American public felt grateful to Nethersole for sparing them this grotesque hinderer of feminine beauty. Nethersole, by the way, has marvelously beautiful hair—a genuine auburn to the roots and not that painted stuff which actresses are now affecting. It is crisp, curly hair and she parts it in the stuff which actresses are now affecting. It is crisp, curly hair and she parts it in the middle and curls it softly back to a low

Do not on any account believe the talk about the waterfall and English bun being in vogue here. The women are still wearing their hair in the pretty Greek knot and parting it in the middle. As much as New Yorkers may ape the English in a general way, their inborn genius for thorough good form in dress makes them every season ignore the ugliest fashtons brought over from Great Britain. A proof of this assertion is to be found in hideous English walking hats that have been brought over by several swell houses this season. They are the kind of hat that were in vogue in the most pronounced crimoline stage and simply to say that most of them are trimmed with heavy tufts of guinea feathers would be telling you enough without declaring that they are big, heavy things with low, curving crowns and high, rolling rims. The chorus in "Lattle Christopher Columbus" is wearing the two new colors of pink and blue. Half of them have on cerisse and half bluet in that strong shade which is purple rather than blue. Hon. H. G. Hutchison, twice a member of the aldermanic board and once mayor pro tem. of the city of Atlanta, was united in marriage last night near McGhee, Tenn., to Miss Annie B. Callaway, one of the most charming and interesting ladies of that state. The ceremeny took place at the elegant home of the bride's mother, Mrs. S. J. Callaway, widow of A. J. Cal-laway, once president of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad. It was a quiet though beautiful marriage, witness-ed only by the relatives of the contracting ed only by the relatives of the contracting parties. Among those present, however, were Mr. and Mrs. Julian Hutchison and Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Evans, of Atlanta. The great popularity of both the bride and groom were attested by the large number of beautiful and handsome presents which were sent in. The groom has long been known as one of Atlanta's most popular and progressive young men, and has twice or oftener in his life proven his great popularity before the people. A WELL-KNOWN DRAMATIST.

Mr. Hoyt Will Be Here Today-His New Play "A Black Sheep" Tonight. Mr. Charles H. Hoyt, the well-known dramatist, who is Hon. Charles H. Hoyt in New Hampshire, where he is a prominent democratic member of the legislature, will be in Atlanta today.

He comes to Atlanta to witness the production of his new play, "A Black Sheep," in which Otis Harlan is the star, which will be seen at the Grand tonight. This is one of the comedy successes of the year. The New Orleans States, speaking of the production of the play there, said:

"For two hours and a half the large audience at the Academy last night laughed and shouted until they were actually tired. 'A Black Sheep,' one of the best plays ever written by Charles Hoyt, and he has written a few in his day, was the cause of all the trouble. The piece came here heralded by fine notices, and yet in some cases the notices did not give it its just dues. Like all of Hoyt's plays, there is very little plot in the skit. People do not look for a plot in them. They look for good work by the cast, and as each one is selected. lected for some different speciality there is every chance for there being plenty of fine turns. In the 'Black Sheep' there are no stars. A star would be out of his eleno stars. A star would be out of his element. Every one in the play is a star as far as stars go. The result is that combined they put up a performance which is rarely equaled in these days of farce comedy. 'A Black Sheep' is one of the cleanest farce comedies ever seen here. There is no let up in the fun. It grows each minute and from the first to the last the audience is kept in a state of hilarity. There is nothing bombastic about the piece. Another pleasant absence was dia-There is nothing bombastic about the piece. Another pleasant absence was dialect comedians. No Irishmen or Germans were there. It was shown that a farce comedy can be presented without these tiresome characters. Otis Harlan, the black sheep of a very distinguished family of New York, is a whole show in himself. He is an easy, graceful comedian, sings and dances well. To use a slang expression, he is simply immense, He caught the sion, he is simply immense. He caught the house last night, and as this is the first time he has ever been south the welcome he received will, no doubt, cause him to return here some other time. To enumerate the different successes achieved by the

the different successes achieved by the company last night would require a full column of matter."

Manager Tannenbaum, of Mobile, who was here yesterday said: "A Black Sheep" is the best show we have ever had in the south. If you don't agree with me, you can just draw on me for the finest suit of clothes in town. It is just the best thing of its kind we have had."

AT EDGEWOOD AVENUE.

Mabel Paige Is Playing to Good Houses at Popular Prices. "The Little Egyptian," the prettiest of all the comedies that little Mabel Paige has presented in Atlanta, was the bill at the Edgewood Avenue theater last night. This little lady has greatly improved since she was here last season and has not only developed into a really handsome child, but is a charming actress, considering her years. She sings sweetly and dances gracefully Her company is fully up to the standard and is better than any support she has ever had here. Yesterday at the matinee one hundred presents were given away and on tomorrow at matinee 200 will be disposed of. Tonight the musical comedy, "A Spanish Romance" will be the bill. This comedy has really so much music in it that it resembles an opera and not an ordinary comedy.

tion of New York citizens reached Atlanta last night The delegation is composed of Hon. Franklin Edson, who was mayor of New York from 1882 to 1884 and was once president of the produce exchange; Hon. Charles G. Wilson, president of the board of health and president of the consolidated exchange; Lieutenant Daniel Delehanty, of the United States navy, who is acting as supervisor of the port; A. B. Frenzel, consulting engineer and W. S. Andrews, com-missioner of street cleaning.

Accompanying the party are Mr. E. H. Cole, the official stenographer, Mr. R. S. Edson, son of the ex-mayor, and Mr. Balch, a New York journalist. Over the Western and Atlantic road the party reached the city last night and at the depot were Hon. John Colvin, member of the aldermanic board, who had been appointed chairman of a committee to meet the delegation, and several citizens. The delegation was conducted to the Kkmball, where rooms on the second floor were re-served and to which the gentlemen were at once shown. No more distinguished looking lot of gentlemen ever visited At-lanta than the party from New York, and certainly no delegation ever came that can certainly no delegation ever came that can more carefully and evenly weigh the condition of the city. Ex-Mayor Edson is a gentleman well in the fifties with a-magnificent head poised upon his shoulders, shoulders as square and even as one would find on an athlete. His face, remarkably handsome, is covered with a thick growth of well-kept iron-gray beard and every feature indicates intelligence and strength. Mr. Wilson, who, though occupying one of the most important offices in the gift of the city of New York, is a southern mar and for four years fought for the cause of the south. He is one of the men whose appearance would attract attention in any group. No stronger face could be found than his, and at a glance he would make friends of all who came in contact with

Mr. Frenzel and Lleutenant Delehanty are the youngest members of the party and are clever and agreeable with all, while the other gentlemen are yet as plasant.

"We came to Atlanta," said one of the party after they had been shown to their rooms last night, "for the purpose of in-specting the crematory and the other sani-tary conditions of Atlanta. The disposition of the garbage is a question which is now-absorbing the city of New York as it is every other city in the country. We have been since leaving New York to Boston, Montreal, Chicago and St. Louis, and now we are here where we shall make a thor-ough inspection of the crematory and look over the other systems of the work. We will go from here to Cincinnati, Pittsburg, Philadelphia and Washington and then

"Of course, we can say nothing yet about what we have discovered on our trip, for our work has not been completed. How-ever, I will say that our ride from Chattanooga here has been one the most de-lightful of our trip. We have passed through many interesting places and have been kept busy all afternoon looking over the old war fields through which we rode." The party will leave the Kimball house this morning and will make a trip to the crematory which they will inspect. They will return by noon and after a lunch will acquire all the information they can up to 2 o'clock, when they leave for Washington.

THE SEIDL FESTIVAL.

Arrangements Have Been Completed

for the Great Musical Event. Arrangements were completed yesterday evening by Mr. Jacob Tannenbaum for a series of concerts to be given in Atlanta early in April by the Seidl orchestra. This engagement will take the form of a musical festival, in which the orchestra will be reinforced by a number of soloists from the Metropolitan Opera Company, and a chorus of 100 voices which is to be trained for the occasion by Mr. A. M. Burbank. The organization of the Atlanta Vocal Society is a timely step, and one that is likely to influence to a considerable extent the musical outlook of the town. It has already been instrumental in making a festival, two evening performances and a matinee, out of what otherwise would have been a one night engagement, and the opportu-nity to take part in a concert with the Seidl orchestra will be of great value to the so-clety. Anton Seidl is conceded to have few equals as a conductor, and certainly has no superior on this side of the water. His appearance here in the role of director, accompanied by his orchestra, will be an event of more than ordinary importance to this community. Mr. Seidl enjoyed the priv-ilege of a personal acquaintance with Wag-ner, lived in his house, and was called upon ner, fived in his house, and was called upon to rehearse the singers for the first per-fermance of the Nibelung drama (1876), and the greater part of his career as a conduc-tor has been occupied with the music of this great master. In his predilections he is German to the core, and probably has no superior anywhere in the interpretation of the music of the advanced German The work already accomplished by Mr. Burbank in his chosen line shows that at the end of the five months intervening the voices under his leadership will be in a condition to render adequate service in the choral work, and the festival as a whole will be presented upon a thoroughly digni-fied and comprehensive scale.

The local arrangement of the festival, which will be given at the Grand, has been placed in the hands of Mr. William Gep-

A SUDDEN CHECK.

It Came Almost Unawares, but it Laid the Foundations of Beath.
A prominent citizen of New York returned from his vacation, feeling in perfect health. As a result he was careless; the next thing was a chill; then a cold; then pneumonia; then death.
Nearly all troubles start with a cold, and this is just the season when it is most easily taken. Some sudden change checks the action of the body, clogs the circulation, closes up the pores and lays the foundations of death. See to a cold in its first stages and you stop the disease. Let it run along and you are sure to suffer unpleasant consequences. A cold needs "a stitch in time."
Physicians all agree that there is only ant consequences. A cold needs "a stitch in time."

Physicians all agree that there is only one sure way of checking a cold, and that is by the use of pure stimulants. The pores must be opened; the circulation aroused and the activity and vigor of life awakened. Nothing does this so certainly as pure whisky, and there is no whisky which possesses the qualities designed for this purpose like Duffy's Pure Malt. It is a remedy not a beverage. It has been used for years and is the most popular preparation before the public. Doctors, clergymen and people generally endorse it for its health-giving qualities, and it has become a family necessity.

Writing concerning it, the Rev. B. Mills, of Kansas, says. "I am a Prisbyterian clergyman—a doctor of divinity, not of medicine—but I am not afraid to say that Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky is the purest and most effective preparation as a medicine I know of, and my experience is a large one."

It should be borne in mind, however, that no other whisky will answer the purpose, and that however anxious any druggist or grocer may be to sell some substitute he should not be encouraged in such intention.

TO HIS FIRST LOVE.

A Man Charged with Leaving His Bride and Skipping with His Divorcee.

THE REQUEST OF HIS FATHER

Wife and Leave the Other Woman. The Strong Denial of the Woman.

Within the shadow of the Fifth Baptist church, in a large brick house on Bell street, has been enacted during the past week a little drama which in uniqueness of plot would give Benson material to work on. A handsome young woman with very black hair and large flashing eyes, a stalwart young man and "a tertium quid," in the person of a heart-broken bride are the principal characters in the plot. It is a queer story of a queer love. For over a year the black-eyed young lady and the stalwart young man lived happily together as man and wife. Then the spirit of their diverse of their stalwart young man lived happily together as man and wife. dream was rudely shocked and a divorce followed. This was in December last and happened in Norfolk, Va. Months went by and in June the young fellow married again, a girl who had been reared by his father and who was his cousin. Now the bride is heart-broken, for she has heard that her husband eloped with his first wife and came to Atlanta.

Several weeks ago a telegram from the chief of police of Norfolk to the detective department said: "Shadow S. H. Simmons. Will arrive tonight." No charge was stated, but Detective Green located him and kept a close watch. The young man secured a house on Bell street next to the Fifth Baptist church and remained there for several days alone. He was seen by the detective one morning making his way to the carshed, where he met an incoming train from the north. A young woman with her father and mother got off. They were conducted by Simmons to the house he oc cupied on Bell street. No other communica-tion was received from Norfolk, and, knowing no charge, the detective took no action. Simmons secured work at the cot-ton seed oil mills near the barracks. Here he would work at night, returning to Atlanta in the daytime. This was all that was known by the detective until last Friday when Mr. William Simmons, father of the young man, arrived in Atlanta from Norfolk. He unraveled the whole affair and told a strange story.

"I am here," he said, "to get my son to return home with me. He has a wife at home who is almost crazy with grief over his neglect. My son has done wrong and I am here to get him to consider how bad he is acting and ask him to come back.

"Nearly two years ago," continued the old man, "my son was married to Miss Eva Normann, who lived near us in Norfolk, Va. She was a pretty girl and at first my son was desperately in love with her. But they fell out for some reason and last December she got a divorce from him and they separated. I was glad, for I did not like the giri he had married.

"He came to live with us at home again. I saw that he was falling in love with Lottie Wilkison, a cousin of his, who lived with us and whom he had known since he was a small child. He came to me one day and told me that he was going to marry Lottie. I did not like it exactly, but I offered no objection and in June they were united in marriage. They seemed to be perfectly happy, and you might know that I was suprised when my boy ran off week before last and came here to Atlanta. I didn't know what he was up to, so that is the reason that I had the telegram sent o watch him.

"I learned in a day or two that the woman whom he first married and from whom he was divorced had left Norfolk, too, and started towards Atlanta. The whole thing flashed across me. I was loath to believe it, but I felt almost positive that he had eloped with his first wife. The information I got from the detectives here assured me of it, and that is why I came. His last wife is all broken up and I am afraid the shock will kill her."

This was the story told by the old man. once to see his son with the hope of inducing him to return to his real wife. The father told about the agony of the bride and the grief of his mother, but young Simmons was obdurate and persistently re-fused to return home. During his stay in Atlanta the old man made several visits to his son, but his requests had no effect and yesterday morning he returned to Nor-

Last night the first Mrs. Simmons was seen at the big brick house next to the Fifth Baptist church. She was very much enraged when the account of the affair as given by the detectives was related to

"There's no truth in it," she exclaimed, her eyes flashing with wrath. "I did not clope with the man and I am not living with him now. He was my husband for a long time, but he began to treat me cruelly and I applied for a divorce last December, which I got. Of course, I haven't lived with him since then. I wouldn't think of doing such a thing; besides I have no use for the man much." Mrs. Simmons was asked if her former husband met her at the train upon her arrival in Atlanta. She acknowledged that he did, but explained it by stating that he was a friend of her father, who came with

"It's simply an outrage," she went on "for such things as that to be said about me. I am grown and I have a right to do what I please and go where I please. I came to Atlanta with my father, who thought that this city offered better opportunity for getting work than Norfolk. I knew that Mr. Simmons was here, but that was no reason that I should remain behind. I have heard that Mr. Simmons married again after we were divorced, but I don't know who he married. GOING HOME FOR TRIAL.

will take up quarters in the county jail to await the next session of the criminal court of that county.

Some six or eight months ago a prosperous farmer living near Bristol lost a valuable horse, and after tracing the animal several miles, found him in the possession of a trader, who had bought him from Owens, who was well known in that section of the country. A hunt for Owens was at once begun, but he managed to escape the officers until last week, when he was arrested near Raleigh, N. C., An officer, Mr. T. C. Howlett, of Bristol, was sent for him at once, and yesterday the officer and the prisoner passed through Atlanta e route home. Owens is a young man, connected with some of the best families of that section of Tennessee, and a strong fight will be made to clear him of the charge made against him. He was not ironed as he went through Atlanta, and the officer expressed no apprehension of an attempt to escape on the part of his prisoner.
